FEDERAL COURT RULES

Reapportioning Meets Demands Of Citizens Suit

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A three-judge federal court Friday ruled that the recent reapportionment of the Louisiana House of Representatives met the demands of four Baton Rouge citizens whose suit prompted the legislature to act.

The court noted that it was not passing judgment on the constitutional provision that, of the 105 seats in the House, 80 are allotted to the 63 parishes outside of Orleans Parish and to the 17 wards in Orleans, leaving 25 seats available for "equitable allocation according to population." The court also noted that the apportionment of the Senate was not questioned.

However, a federal suit has been filed to redistrict the Senate. The recent legislative act is under attack in a state district court suit filed by seven St. Landry Parish taxpayers.

REQUEST DENIED

In Friday's decision, the court, composed of Circuit Judge John Minor Wisdom and U. S. Dist. Judges E. Gordon West and Frank B. Ellis, denied the request of the Baton Rouge citizens for a federal reapportionment decree. The court held that the legislature's actions met the court's test of constitutionality and also substantially met the citizens' demands.

The legislature shuffled the seats as the federal suit outlined in the federal suit with the exception that it gave one less representative than was asked for Caddo and Calcasieu parishes and gave the seats to Tangipahoa and Terrebonne parishes.

The suit was filed by former

Minnesota Hit By Squall Line; One Man Killed

By United Press International

A deadly squall line ripped through West-Central Minnesota Friday killing one person, igniting fires and disrupting power.

The East and the Midwest were parched by a heat wave now in its fifth day with little relief in sight.

Lightning killed Delano Walker, 21, while he worked on a farm near Litchfield, Minn.

The storm packed winds up to 80 miles per hour and poured down more than 1.5 inches of rain in less than one hour. Store windows in downtown Litchfield were blown out and two homes were set ablaze by lightning.

The U. S. Weather Bureau posted a tornado warning for portions of South Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa.

The sultry heat caused water shortages in five states and posed threats of forest and brush fires.

Portions of New England were slated to get a little relief from the 90-degree plus heat today when a weak Canadian cool front moves southward.

But the Weather Bureau issued another carbon copy forecast for most of the simmering northeast quarter of the nation—continued hot and humid.

The Chicago area was in one of its worst droughts since the dust bowl days of the great depression. Part of Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and Pennsylvania had water shortages.

The weather had a hand in numerous deaths across the nation.

Eight persons, including six children, were presumed drowned at Athens, Ga., when a car plunged into the flood-swollen Oconee River during a heavy rain Friday. The driver of the car, Mrs. Jewett Barnett, Nicholson, Ga., who managed to reach shore, said the accelerator jammed on the car.

Belgian Aircraft Said Shot Down

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The Belgian Defense Ministry said Friday night that British troops may have accidentally shot down a Belgian army transport plane that crashed in West Germany during NATO maneuvers Wednesday, killing 38 paratroopers and crewmen.

A Defense Ministry statement said a mortar shell from a British army shooting range near Guetersloh may have brought down the Belgian C-119 plane.

In Detmold, Germany, a British army spokesman said it was possible the plane had been shot down accidentally by British soldiers. He said British troops were exercising with small arms and mortar fire Wednesday but aircraft had been instructed to stay above a 10,000-foot altitude in the maneuver area.

Soviet Chief Plunges Into Conferences

Satellite Groups Are Lined Up At Surprise Meet

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev arrived in East Berlin Friday and sped through a lackluster reception to plunge into a surprise summit meeting with Soviet satellite leaders.

Khrushchev was believed to be lining up his East European satellites behind Kremlin policy in the ideological conflict with Red China and, possibly, charting a new course for better relations with the West.

The Kremlin suggested this Saturday in publishing a Moscow speech Khrushchev made last week saying that President Kennedy had decided the time had come for better relations with the Soviet Union.

ANNIVERSARY

The announced reason for Khrushchev's visit to East Berlin on the heels of President Kennedy's triumphant midweek reception in West Berlin was the 70th anniversary celebrations Sunday for East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht.

But as the official East German news agency ADN disclosed one by one the names of other Communist leaders arriving in East Berlin, it began to appear that the most important Communist meeting since the 1961 Moscow party congress was in the making.

The Communist chieftains already on hand, besides Khrushchev and Ulbricht, included Wladyslaw Gomulka of Poland, Antonin Novotny of Czechoslovakia, Ja-

BUILT IN 1754

Spanish Mission Is Fallout Shelter

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — An old Spanish mission built to fend off Indian attack will become the nation's oldest fallout shelter today.

Mission Nuestra Señora del la Purissima Concepcion de Acuna—built in 1754 for protection from marauding bands of Apache Indians—is to be stocked with 14 days of provisions for 191 persons.

City and state Civil Defense authorities are to be at mission at 10 a.m. when Catholic Archbishop Robert E. Lucey dedicates the mission for its new task.

The mission is still used as a Catholic church and is believed to be the oldest church that has remained intact and in use in Texas.

Martin Essar, San Antonio's Civil Defense director, said the provisions will be stocked by students from a nearby seminary in an ancient kitchen-like room near the altar.

The interior of the mission's big chapel will be the shelter.

This mission is often called the most beautifully proportioned of all the Spanish missions. It was

POLL SHOWS WHY

GOP Could Take Soft Rights Line

By BRANDT AYERS
World Capital Bureau

WASHINGTON — Results of a confidential poll ordered by the Republican Committee has given the GOP an excuse to take a soft line on civil rights.

Top Republican national party leaders are grabbing at the opportunity to get off the racial hook because the poll shows overwhelming Negro satisfaction with the Kennedy administration.

Significantly, it also reveals administration weakness on other issues such as Cuba and economy — a virtual presidential platform for Sen. Barry Goldwater, now considered his party's front-runner.

At the same time, Democratic policy-makers — wedded to a civil rights hard line by administration legislative proposals — are disturbed over its political consequences.

A Democratic National Committee source says the results of a respected national opinion poll will show that President Kennedy's popularity with voters has slipped from 63 per cent to 47 per cent, since the racial crisis.

Results of the Republican-ordered poll were presented behind closed doors to national committee members when they met last week in Denver, Colo.

It was learned that the results were based on two samplings of voter sentiment on a wide range of issues, one made just before the President ordered a limited blockade of Cuba last October and the second this spring.

On the main issue, civil rights, the soundings by an established pollster showed 25 per cent of Negroes were dissatisfied with the administration in October, but only nine per cent said they weren't satisfied with the handling of the racial crisis this spring.

A source close to the Republican high command confirmed that the strategy now would be to play down civil rights because the Negro vote appears impossible to get, concentrating instead on the administration's weaknesses.

"It underscores the futility of the Republican Party's attempts to get the Negro vote," observed a key figure in GOP national politics.

Swede Officer Pleads Guilty To Spy Charge

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)—Col. Stig Wennerstrom, who has been honored by both the United States and Sweden for his contributions to the Western alliance, pleaded guilty Friday to being a Russian spy for the past 15 years.

The gray-haired air force officer made the plea in a closed hearing in magistrates court where he was taken on charges of "serious espionage and illegal intelligence activities."

Despite the plea he still will be tried but this is not expected to take place until an investigation is completed, perhaps several months from now.

Wennerstrom, 56, holds the U. S. Legion of Merit. Newspapers hinted that gambling had led to his downfall and said he had made about $180,000 from the Russians.

While the hearing was under way Premier Tage Erlander held a meeting of his cabinet in the presence of King Gustav VI to discuss the mounting threat to the government provoked by the spy sensation.

In announcing Wennerstrom's arrest early this week, the Foreign Ministry said Wennerstrom had confessed to selling top-secret documents to the Russians since the hearing was under way.

FLED ON FOOT

The robber was last seen fleeing on foot after abandoning his stolen getaway car some eight blocks from the bank.

He was about 50 years old.

He walked into the bank at 1:58 p.m., two minutes before the usual closing time. Banks in Dallas stay open until 6 p.m. on Fridays.

Described as sloppily dressed, he was slightly stooped and wore a white handkerchief and carried a large brown paper sack.

He told tellers to "sack it up" and carefully cocked two hammers on the old - style 12-gauge shotgun.

Detective Capt. Will Fritz, said the sawed - off shotgun, which was found in the stolen car, was loaded only with blanks.

Bank Vice President Harold Shannon was sitting with his back to the bandit, but whirled around when he heard the gun cock and saw him with the sawed - off shotgun.

The gunman forced teller Tommy Black, 27, to sack up the money first, then he passed a sack to Jerry Leonard, 28, and to Richard Bartholow, 24. Only three customers were in the bank at the time.

The 70-year-old bank, one of Dallas' oldest financial institutions, has no electrical holdup alarm.

The gunman was described by witnesses as "an old bum" who had wandered into the bank several days ago seeking a loan which was rejected by bank officials.

"All I could see was that shotgun pointing at me and that he

CAR PLUNGES INTO FLOODED RIVER

8 Drown In Auto Accident

ATHENS, GA. (UPI) — An automobile with its accelerator jammed hurtled into a flood-swollen river with 10 screaming passengers Friday. Eight of them, including six children, drowned.

Two persons - the driver and another child - were rescued in the tragedy which began as a shopping trip and ended in "a mangle of screams."

Hours after the accident on U. S. 78 in Athens, rescue workers were still trying to recover the car from the swift floodwaters of the Oconee River, bloated by nearly a foot of rain in three days.

Lamar Thaxton, 34, saved the surviving child, 10-year-old Jerry Green. Another man who left the scene before he could be identified saved Mrs. Jewett Barnett of near-by Nicholson, the driver and grandmother of all the children in the car.

Thaxton said he did not see the car go into the river. "I heard screaming — a mangle of screams." He said it sounded like both adults and children screaming.

Thaxton said he dived into the rushing water with his clothes on and paddled after the car, which floated momentarily. It stayed up long enough for Thaxton to pull abreast with it and he talked to the frantic victims for "several seconds."

"A good many words were exchanged," he said. He said he managed to get Jerry out and the other man removed Mrs. Barnett.

Trapped in the car or swept away by the raging current were Mrs. Barnett's husband, Mrs. Mae Watkins, 63; Wanda Epps, 10; Kathy Epps, 8; and Penny Epps, 6; Charles Epps, 1; Deborah Green, 9, and Dale Green, 6.

Mrs. Barnett said the accelerator of the car stuck after she left a supermarket, raced toward the concrete bridge spanning the river here and swerved down a steep embankment and into the water.

It was quickly tumbled several hundred feet from the bridge where the water was lapping at the floor, about 12 feet above normal.

Tory Critic Forecasts Civil War

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan said Friday night he would not panic over the Profumo scandal and he intends to lead the Conservative party in Britain's next election. A Tory critic of Macmillan quickly commented this would mean civil war within the party.

Recording his first television interview since a sex and security storm forced his war minister, John Profumo, out in disgrace, Macmillan said:

"All being well and if I keep my health and strength I hope to lead the party at the next election."

An hour before appearing on the nation's television screens he told a public meeting in industrial Wolverhampton that, in handling the Profumo affair, he did not intend "to fall either into panic or obstinacy—or complacency."

DUTY CLEAR

He said, "My own duty is clear. I have first, as head of government, a duty to the nation as a whole. I have also, as leader of the Conservative party, a duty to the party, its life, its strength and its future."

"Both these duties I intend to discharge."

Macmillan emphasized his refusal to quit less than 24 hours before he is due to meet President Kennedy for important talks.

By serving notice he is no lame-duck premier, he possibly strengthens his own negotiation position. At the same time he lets the rebels in his own party know he is still a force to be reckoned with.

Political authorities in touch with Tory opinion had been assuming that, with the best will in the world, Macmillan was unlikely

Goldwater Says Demos 'Stole' Election In 1960

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UPI) — "Big city machines supported by the lords of vice and crime," helped the Democrats "steal" the 1960 presidential election from former Vice President Nixon, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Friday night.

Goldwater told a Republican rally here that Cook County, Illinois, alone did not steal the election. "Why limit it to Cook County?" he asked.

His speech here followed a triumphant appearance Thursday night before the national Young Republican convention in San Francisco.

"Nixon really won the election but it was stolen from him by the big city machines supported by the lords of vice and crime cooperating with the liberals," he said here.

But he said he was opposed to the theory that the Republicans should write off the big Eastern cities in the 1964 election.

"We've got to make a strong fight there in the next campaign," Goldwater said.

Goldwater, who said his policy regarding the GOP presidential nomination is to "wait and see," said he thinks the party has an "excellent chance" to defeat President Kennedy in 1964. He said the party should be strong in the Rocky Mountain states and the Midwest and will gain in the South.

How does U.S. Rep. Otto E. Passman of Monroe feel about a pay increase for congress?

Rep. Passman said he is strongly in favor of a pay increase for Congress "even though I don't need a salary increase myself." Passman said his reasons are simple. Some Congressmen don't make enough to meet the tremendous expenses incurred by living in Washington and carrying on the public business.

Here is Rep. Passman's statement:

"A congressman gets $22,500 a year and pays income tax like any other individual. A member of Congress gets expenses paid to Washington only once a year. All other trips he makes between Washington and his district are paid out of his own pocket."

"A member of Congress must maintain two homes — one is Washington and one in his district and a decent apartment in Washington will cost as much as $250 a month. Regardless of what he is allowed, a member of Congress may spend only $3000 in deductions on their income tax. This is not an added deduction but a maximum."

"Members of Congress have been so afraid of jobs that they have failed to give themselves needed pay increases while government civil service workers have continued to get raises. Now, some government employees make more in salaries than do members of Congress. If members of Congress were courageous enough to tell the truth and vote needed pay increases, they would not need to legally cheat — by that I mean padding their payrolls with relatives."

"Another point is that Members of Congress are called on for two or three times more donations than is the ordinary citizen."

"Here is what congressmen get for expenses:

"$600 per year for maintaining an office in his district; a certain number of minutes for telephone calls, which, when exceeded must be paid out of the congressman's pocket; a fixed allowance for stationery while a congressman handles a larger bulk of mail than he can pay out of his allowance."

"Picture a member of Congress as a member of the board of directors of the biggest business on the face of the earth — the government of the United States. By all business standards, members of Congress are the lowest paid members of any board of directors."

Rep. Passman also said his office has turned back in the 16 years he has been in Congress $39,185.05 in clerk-hire allowances which was not spent."

He also said he had received several checks from various publications for articles he has written on foreign aid. He said he is not accepting any of them and child's birth certificate.

If there is to be no Bible reading in a public or state-supported school, does that apply to parochial schools which receive certain types of state support? For example, in the Twin Cities and Ouachita Parish Catholic schools ride the public school buses, participate in the free lunch program and are furnished schoolbooks as are the public schools.

The Monroe World's Washington bureau checked with the Court and came up with this answer.

The decision bans Bible reading only as part of formal spiritual ceremonies in public schools. The decision does not reach the question of federal jurisdiction over schools receiving state aid for text books and other aid. This would have to be retested, the court said, but existing as now interpreted by the Supreme Court, parochial schools apparently have been granted autonomy even when receiving peripheral aid.

Is J. Paul Getty the richest man in the world? What is his estimated wealth? What are his U. S. holdings and what is his approximate daily income?

Mr. Getty, although at one time not quite so publicly - shy, has veered away from the camera and glare of the public eye in recent years. Therefore, no recent, up-to-date figures are available. What follows, however, was made available by the Associated Press.

When Fortune Magazine in 1957 named Jean Paul Getty as the richest man in the United States—it estimated his worth "conservatively" at 700 million to a billion dollars—he was almost entirely unknown to the public. His wealth came from a global oil empire and he spent much of his time away from his home base in Los Angeles. Busy making money, he seldom figured in the news.

Worth $250,000 by the time he was 23, Getty credited his father's foresight and his own luck with his success.

"In building a large fortune," he said, "it pays to be born at the right time. I was born at a very favorable time. If I had been born earlier or later, I would have missed the great business opportunities that existed in World War I and later."

"I suppose I take a long time and it takes extraordinary circumstances to be born at the right time and have cash money available at the right time. I was fortunate due to my father's foresight and my good luck. In the Depression I did what the experts said one should not do. I was a very big buyer of oil company stocks."

Born in Minneapolis, December 15, 1892, he was the son of George Franklin Getty, a lawyer who went into the oil business in Oklahoma in 1903 and two years later moved to California. There J. Paul Getty was reared. The only other child, a sister, died before he was born.

When the elder Getty, who seemed to strike oil every time he dug a hole, died in 1930 he left an estate of 15 million dollars, of which $500,000 was for the son. The bulk went to the widow.

At that time J. Paul Getty was 37 years of age. He had been graduated in economics and political science from Oxford University in England after having studied at the University of Southern California and the University of California.

The younger Getty's first attempt at drilling — years before his father's death — resulted in a good well and luck with him thereafter.

His great fortune was founded in the years of the economic depression in the early 1930s. Some of the stocks he bought then increased in value as much as 100 times.

Cash had extraordinary power in that period and he possessed it in abundance. Thus he was able to buy control of Pacific Western Oil, which was merged subsequently with Getty interests into the Getty Oil Company.

Tidewater Oil and Skelly Oil also were acquired and included among some 60 subsidiaries of the principal company, of which he owned 82 percent.

Getty was in all phases of oil — pumping it out of the ground, transporting in his own tankers, refining in his own refineries and having his own distribution system for getting gasoline to filling stations.

He had valuable interests in the Middle East. In 1949 he obtained from King Ibn Saud the oil rights to Saudi Arabia's 50 per cent interest in the Neutral Zone, a 45 - mile square area between Kuwait and Saudi Arabia.

Getty had a home in Saudi Arabia, as well as a palatial estate in Santa Monica, Calif., but in later years he lived in Europe much of the time. His permanent office was in Los Angeles. Among his properties were the exclusive Hotel Pierre in New York and the Spartan Aircraft Corporation.

At the time Fortune announced that its survey showed him to be the nation's richest man, Getty hadn't been back in the United States for five years. He was then nearing his 65th birthday, but with no intention of retiring.

"I'll retire when they put me six feet under," he said.

HE AVOIDS WORRY

Interviewed in London at the time of the magazine survey, Getty said "it doesn't make any difference to me personally if I am worth five million or 200 million or one billion or several billion dollars."

Did he really have a billion dollars?

"You know," he answered, "if you can count your money you don't have a billion dollars. I just don't know the exact total of my holdings."

He was asked how much he thought he would get if he were to sell out then. He replied nonchalantly:

"I would hope to get several billions. But, remember, a billion dollars isn't worth what it used to be."

With all his responsibilities, Getty said he never worried. "Back in the oil well digging days I made up my mind not to worry about things — particularly when I went to bed at night," he explained. "I don't worry today."

A tall, well-set-up man 5 feet 11 inches in height and weighing around 180 pounds, the billionaire oilman said being named the richest man in the nation was a distinction he was not particularly interested in. I don't think there is any glory in being known as a moneybags. I'd rather be considered a business man."

Business was his life. One of his former wives was quoted as saying that was his "first love." He loved business for business' sake, and wealth to him was a byproduct.

"I think the fundamental strength of the United States is in its businessmen," he said in one interview.

"They have built up the industrial potential of the United States and if American industrial potential is to be kept ahead of the Russians, it is to American businessmen we have to trust it. Without the businessman, what have you got left in the United States?"

There is a time when he was interested in yachting, but he sold his 260-foot yacht in 1936 and centered his non-business interests on art. In California Getty had a priceless personal collection of art treasures that would dazzle even the choicest museum curator.

He was proud particularly of his Persian carpets, his 18th century French tapestries and furniture and his Greek and Roman sculptures. He also had a valuable gallery of paintings and wrote a book — in collaboration with Ethel Lee Vane of New York — called "Collector's Choice."

He also wrote "History of the Oil Business of George Franklin and J. Paul Getty, 1903-39," and "Europe in the 18th Century."

Five Getty marriages ended in divorces. He was the father of five sons, by four of the wives. One wife had two, one none.

At what time of the year and in what position in relationship to our area is the sun the hottest?

Meteorologists in Monroe said that this question is difficult to answer but here goes:

On June 22 the sun has gone as far north as it goes. He said that there is no certain time for the sun to be hotter than other times if the question applies to actual heat of the sun. The World Almanac says that the surface temperature of the sun is about 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit and the interior temperature is 35,000,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Is there any government-owned land near Pollock that a person could lease for cattle grazing purposes only?

Cattle grazing permits are issued for areas of the Kisatchie National Forest which covers several parishes including some territory in the vicinity of Pollock.

"But," says Ray Brandt, of Alexandria, supervisor of the National Forest, "we are not looking for new grazing. We are trying to put under permit what we have now."

He explained, "We have some permits and an awful lot of trespassing, and we have started a program to get all of the cattle grazing under permit. First priority will be given to local people now using it on the basis of 10 cents per cow per month. We would like to limit grazing to eight or nine months, but right now it is year around. Some of the grazing area is under fence and some is open range."

The National Forest has about half a million acres of grazing land in native grasses. The heaviest grazing areas are in Rapides and Vernon parishes. There is some grazing land in Natchitoches, Grant and Winn parishes, and little or none in Webster and Calibore parishes, Brandt said.

On the future outlook for grazing permits, Brandt said, "We have more cattle in there now than we can handle. We won't take any more unless the local people don't want to continue using it."

When skin diving below 25 feet, would it be advisable for a person who is short-winded to use a mixture of 90 per cent regular air plus 10 per cent oxygen for breathing? I have also heard that oxygen below 25 feet in the water is poisonous.

According to Al Warriner, a professional deep sea diver with Underwater Services, Inc., at New Orleans, it is doubtful whether 10 per cent more oxygen would be enough to be helpful. "Ten per cent would be treading on dangerous ground. Enriching the mixture with an additional 10 per cent oxygen might help him go another 40 to 50 feet, but that would be about all," Warriner said. For a more specific and detailed answer to the problem, he advised writing to the U. S. Naval Diving School at Washington, D. C.

Warriner said in his profession regular air in the atmosphere is used for breathing down to 200 feet. "Below 200 feet we use a mixture of helium and oxygen," he said. Warriner explained mixing of oxygen and helium was a very critical operation involving precise formulas and specialized equipment which could prove to be a drawback to mixing 10 per cent oxygen with 90 per cent normal air. Pure oxygen below 32 feet is a very dangerous substance, the deep sea diver explained.

Is U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater a Jew, half-Jew or is it just a Jewish name?

According to Stephen Shadegg's biography of the senator, Goldwater is the son of Baron Goldwater and Josephine Williams who were married by an Episcopal minister. The senator and other children of the marriage, according to the biography, were baptized in the Episcopal faith and Barry Goldwater served as altar boy and acolyte.

His father, Baron Goldwater, was the son of Mike Goldwater (the original name of Goldwasser was anglicized), a native of Posnan Province in Poland who fled his country and worked first in Paris as a tailor and then in England before coming to the United States where he became a merchant. Mike Goldwater's wife was Sarah Nathan whom he married in London. Both were of the Jewish faith.

The senator's mother, the former Josephine Williams, was the daughter of Robert Royal Williams, a Scottish school master.

Who is Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon who has figured so much recently in the British scandal?

Gordon is a 31-year-old jazz singer and is a West Indian. He claims to be one of Christine Keeler's lovers — the playgirl that touched off the scandal when it was discovered she was mistress to former War Minister John Profumo and a Soviet naval attaché at the same time. Actually it was Gordon who broke the scandal into the open. It came when he fired into the door of her apartment after she refused to allow him entrance. In his trial, it was discovered Keeler had fled to escape testifying. Then it came out that she was Profumo's mistress.

I would like to know if Adolph Hitler is dead or alive. I have heard so many tales about him.

From the winter of 1944 Hitler's hopes for victory were based on the development of some new superweapon or on the break-up of the Allies. Neither of these things came to pass, and from January 1945, he never left his Berlin headquarters or his bunker. He was in a state of extreme nervous exhaustion, was insane or at least prematurely senile, and was planning his own suicide and the death of all German troops, who were forbidden to surrender. On April 29, he married Eva Braun, his mistress for many years, and dictated a statement naming his choice as head of the state. On April 30 he shot himself and Eva took poison. Their bodies were burned and no trace has been found of the remains by Americans. However, the course of events on April 30 has been verified by many witnesses, including German witnesses. The U. S. government has said that it was satisfied the facts in the case are as have been stated. Recently, Russia claimed to have found his remains and buried them in a secret place.

EAST BERLIN VISIT

Soviet Premier Fails In Try To 'Outdo' Kennedy

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev flew to East Berlin for a demonstrative visit Friday on the heels of President Kennedy's triumphant reception in West Berlin. If it was his idea to outdo the President he failed.

The official East German news agency ADN said half a million East Berliners turned out to greet Khrushchev, a figure not mentioned in West Berlin. It was his idea to outdo the President he failed.

Walter Ulbricht, East German Communist party chief, was at the airport to greet Khrushchev, who arrived with his wife.

Khrushchev did not bring with him Valentina Tereshkova, the Soviet space woman, as some speculated he would do in an effort to stir up public excitement about his visit.

Ulbricht said in his welcoming speech that Kennedy came to West Berlin Wednesday to whip up enmity between the people of West Germany and East Germany "in the interests of the American monopolists." Khrushchev said he agreed.

Khrushchev was off form. He was not his usual cracking, bouncy self. At times he looked almost bored with the proceedings.

In a 20-minute speech to a crowd gathered at the East Berlin City Hall, he spoke of nothing but the virtues and accomplishments of the Soviet Union and the Soviet Communist party.

He made no threats toward the West nor did he praise Ulbricht. It is Ulbricht's 70th birthday Sunday which ostensibly drew Khrushchev to East Berlin.

Actually, Khrushchev will have a summit meeting of Soviet bloc nations and there should be some fireworks before he heads back home next week.

"Foreigners have often come to Berlin in the recent past—both to East and West Berlin," Khrushchev said at City Hall.

"But what have these visitors in their baggage? Some come to the West and say they want to improve and normalize relations but the negotiations prove otherwise.

"As far as we are concerned, we have come to Berlin to celebrate the 70th birthday of our friend, Walter Ulbricht."

His reference to visitors in West Berlin obviously was directed at Kennedy but he never mentioned him by name.

While Kennedy drew a crowd of 250,000 when he spoke at the West Berlin City Hall, not more than 50,000 East Berliners heard Khrushchev.

Khrushchev is meeting four top Communist leaders — Ulbricht; Wladyslaw Gomulka of Poland; Antonin Novotny of Czechoslovakia and Janos Kadar of Hungary.

East German officials announced there would be no public events Saturday and Sunday because Khrushchev would be in conference with these leaders.

This stirred speculation that Khrushchev is rounding up solid support for his position in the ideological quarrel with Red China.

TO SELL MISSILES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department announced Friday that arrangements had been completed for the sale of 25 million worth of U.S. Hawk anti-aircraft missiles to Israel.

The Hawk is designed to knock down attacking airplanes at low and medium altitudes over a battlefield.

The Pentagon said Israel would buy enough missiles to supply one battalion. It did not specify how many that would be.

11 Viet Nameese Killed By Bombs On 3 Bicycles

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Terrorist bombs rigged on three bicycles blew up Friday outside the U.S. military aid mission offices, killing 11 Vietnamese and injuring 42 persons, including 3 Americans.

The Americans were civilians working in the offices of the Military Assistance Advisory Group. One suffered leg cuts from flying glass and was hospitalized. The others were not injured seriously.

Several American soldiers also were injured slightly by flying debris.

Two of the terrorists who left the bicycle bombs may have been among the victims, American sources said. They said a third man apparently got away in time but the two others were caught by the explosion and killed.

Officials believe the bicycle bombs were planted by Communist Viet Cong terrorists, who have staged sporadic attacks on the American aid mission here. It is the source of training and supplies for Viet Nam's fight against the Viet Cong guerrillas.

The bicycles were loaded with plastic explosives and left near the aid mission compound by the terrorists. Two were placed along the compound walls. The third was left in the street outside quarters for American officers a few blocks away.

LOOKED INTO BY U THANT

Reports Of Prostitution In U.N. Are Investigated

NEW YORK (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant said Friday he is looking into reports that prostitutes operated in the international organization with U.N. diplomats as their prey.

He told a news conference he was appraised of the reports carried in some newspapers and "I immediately asked the head of the responsible department to submit a report."

He declined comment pending receipt of the department report. The newspaper reports first appeared in the New York Journal-American last weekend. The newspaper said an international ring of call girls operated in the United Nations with some of the girls hiding behind the immunity of foreign diplomatic service personnel.

It said the Central Intelligence Agency and the FBI were looking into the possibility of such a ring. Neither agency would comment on the report.

Last Tuesday, the Journal-American and the New York Daily News said agents of both federal agencies were attempting to determine if a 22-year-old blonde Czech girl, who fled from the United States in 1961, had sought secrets for the Communists.

The newspapers said Maria Novotny, a niece of Czechoslovak President, Antonin Novotny, had operated as a high-priced call girl in the United Nations and in other diplomatic circles.

She was arrested in Manhattan with British television producer Harry Alan Towers, 42, in 1961 on vice charges.

Towers, accused of being her procurer, skipped $10,000 bail and now is reported living in Prague, Czechoslovakia. The government said he brought Miss Novotny into the United States from Britain for purposes of prostitution.

Miss Novotny left the country hurriedly while on probation after conviction of prostitution.

In London last Wednesday, Miss Novotny said reports of U.S. security agents checking into a vice ring that catered to U.N. diplomats were being used as a smoke screen.

She contended the U.S. agents are "only appearing to be active in a case they blundered over two years ago."

"I always knew that Harry (Towers) had left-wing tendencies," she said. "But I cannot understand why the Americans have suddenly decided to investigate questions of espionage in connection with our troubles in New York."

"They knew then of my Czech background and everyone knew that Towers had disappeared behind the Iron Curtain," she said. "Why didn't they begin a security inquiry then?"

In another development Friday, a woman investment counselor, convicted of prostitution Wednesday, was paroled until more information can be obtained on her background in the investment field and as a U.N. correspondent.

It also was revealed in Criminal Court that the FBI, Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Internal Revenue Service were looking into the background of the woman—Evelyn Davis.

Mrs. Davis, 33, was arrested last week at a midtown hotel and charged with offering to commit a lewd and indecent act and prostitution.

She was described as an investment counselor and a U.N. correspondent for a monthly Filipino-American newspaper.

Gall Of De Gaulle

President Charles de Gaulle of France, known as Le Grand Charles, is the world's outstanding man when it comes to sheer gall, nerve, guts, assurance, courage or whatever one may choose to call it. He bows to no man, caters to no man, appeases no man and works for the good of his country.

Incidentally, we can think of one man, who has just given De Gaulle a big snub, along with Portugal, on his trip to Europe, who could take a lesson from the French lone wolf in the matters of national confidence, national dignity, national pride and national preparedness. That man is President Kennedy of the United States, who has been trying unsuccessfully to chop De Gaulle down, just as he tried, with some success, to cut down the conservative governments of England and Canada. Kennedy is trying to substitute one-worldism for nationalism and the one world he seeks to set up is socialistic and borders far too closely on the kind of world Russia wants — with too many chances that Russia would be the boss of that one world.

The Top Man

Now that former Prime Minister Winston Churchill of England and former President Herbert Hoover of the United States have been debilitated by age and ailments, De Gaulle is the top man in the free world and also undoubtedly has as much or more of what it takes as any of the communist bosses, since he can be described as a self-made man, whereas Premier Nikita Khrushchev of Russia is a product of the late Premier Joseph Stalin and the one top man in Red China is a little less clearly defined.

When De Gaulle gathered the reins of France into his hands as the first president of the fifth republic in 1959, after some 40 years or more of unstable governments in that country, he immediately moved to bring order out of chaos.

His continuing efforts to strengthen the French government and to restore a lost national sense of mission have been applauded by the United States, particularly the people of this country. He also drew official commendation until he let it be known that he would not take dictation from the United States, as England and some of the other countries of Europe have been doing.

Some hold the view that if De Gaulle continues what they regard as his "continuous conduct" the net effect would be to reduce American participation in west European security and thus to soften the area coveted by the powerful politicians of Soviet Russia.

The latter probably is a mistaken position. Right now De Gaulle's government appears to be the hardest core of resistance to Russian aggression. Anyone who looks at the situation realistically, without trying to build up hopes in the present administration which he knows does not exist, is aware that the present administration in this country does not have the kind of nationalism nor the stamina or even the will to resist the sort of government our enemies want in a one-world rule. Our present government has either been unable or unwilling to say to Russia "Stop!" and mean it.

Spell Disaster

Many believe dissolution of the National Atlantic Treaty Organization in Europe might spell disaster for the free-world countries. Even this is doubtful. As long as there is a NATO force the United States will either try to dominate it or turn it over to the United Nations, the latter of which is the worst thing in the world that could be done as far as protecting the free world is concerned. It is useless to deny that the United Nations is communist-dominated and equally useless to deny that in recent years all the war efforts of the United Nations have been devoted to whipping down such democracies as Katanga. Thus, a NATO force in the hands of the United Nations would be worse than useless for the western powers.

De Gaulle is aware of this and that is one of his reasons for wanting to build a strong military force, independent nuclear striking force. De Gaulle is using good hard sense and anyone who analyzes the situation thoroughly will realize that. If De Gaulle has made a mistake it was in keeping England out of the European Common Market and thus lessening the chances that England will go along with France in establishing a strong, independent European military force.

At present we have at least four strong world forces striving to gain world domination or to prevent some other force from doing that. These forces are Russia, Red China, President Kennedy of the United States and President De Gaulle of France. Russia and Red China have little liking for each other and Kennedy and De Gaulle are now in a struggle for control of the free nations of Europe.

Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., a leftist and "yes-man" for President Kennedy, asserted recently that De Gaulle is making a grave mistake. Fulbright, who heads the senate foreign relations committee, indicates the United States may try to isolate De Gaulle from the rest of western Europe.

This is a policy carefully disclaimed by the Kennedy administration, yet Kennedy's trip to Europe, leaving out France as a place he would visit, is a kind of acknowledgment that such a plan exists.

That is one of the president's major reasons for visiting Europe at this time, when about the only currently stable government in western Europe at this time is France. Italy has just had a change of government, a change is pending in West Germany and one probably is upcoming in England.

His Image

Another reason for the visit, of course, and a prime one, was that Kennedy was badly in need of restoring his much-talked-of image, which had been practically shattered by his espousing of Negro uprisings in the south, although both he and Attorney General Robert Kennedy were opposed to demonstrations in their own bailiwick—Washington. Kennedy was badly in need of the plaudits and cheers of crowds in Europe to recharge his ego, and, he hoped, to brighten his "image" in this country. Although many of his radical-leftist advisers opposed the European trip at this time, there are some who believe the American president was diabolically inspired to make the trip in order to save his "image" from destruction, in integration fiasco.

Kennedy, at a news conference in Bonn, West Germany, said that leaders who have lost faith in NATO or who have tried to impede it have "no sense of history." No one doubted he was addressing himself to De Gaulle but many doubted that NATO, if it should become a tool of the United Nations, would do the United States or any of the other free-world countries any good.

President Kennedy said he hoped the Atlantic Ocean would not be regarded as a wall between countries. In this we can agree, particularly in the matter of trade, where De Gaulle has jolted the United States to some extent.

Senator Fulbright suggested that the United States may have to threaten the withdrawal of some troops from western Europe in order to make the rest of the continent aware of "the damage De Gaulle is causing. De Gaulle probably would be glad of such a withdrawal and possibly of dissolution of NATO.

JFK Basking In Plaudits

Journeys As Congress Squares Off To Slash
Huge Foreign Aid Budget deeper than ever before

While President Kennedy is basking in the plaudits of European throngs, Congress is squaring off to slash his $4.5 billion foreign aid budget deeper than ever before.

All indications are he will be lucky if he winds up with $3.5 billion, and it's very possible it will be around $3.2 billion. Last year, after a long and bitter struggle, Congress finally voted $3.9 billion. The total is certain to be considerably less this session.

Of utmost significance is the fact that the mounting tide of opposition to large-scale foreign aid spending is bipartisan. In both the House and Senate, Republican and Democratic leaders are in the forefront against it.

A striking illustration is Senator Wayne Morse, D-Ore., who generally supports administration policies.

But although he was one of the leaders of the 1949 drive to secure Senate ratification of the North Atlantic Treaty, and has long favored foreign aid, Morse now is one of its most caustic critics. In a series of Senate speeches and in hearings before the Foreign Relations Committee, he has been raking the President's budget with blistering blasts.

It is noteworthy that Morse is not attacking the basic principle of foreign aid. Neither is he assailing officials connected with this program. His comments, while scathing, are wholly impersonal.

His fire is directed at the policies determining the allocation of foreign aid. In Morse's blunt opinion, they are outdated, wasteful and indefensible. He is particularly critical of military aid, and cites numerous "senseless" and "incomprehensible" examples.

The following highlight from one of his Senate speeches graphically summarizes his highly telling line of attack:

"Britain, France and the Benelux countries are not only continuing to receive military aid from us which they do not need, but they are doing nothing to take over a proportionate share of the subsidy to Greece and Turkey, without which these two countries probably could not furnish the 24 divisions they do to NATO."

"Military aid alone for fiscal 1963 to NATO members shows Belgium receiving $28 million; Denmark, $22 million; France, $14 million; Greece, $62 million; Italy, $70 million; The Netherlands, $16 million; Norway, $33.7 million; Portugal, $11 million; Turkey, $135.7 million; Britain, $11 million."

"To this should be added the some $150 million in various kinds of economic aid which we also send to Greece and Turkey, and the $32 million in military and roughly equivalent amount of economic aid we make available to Spain... If the European NATO partners truly thought that Spain, Greece and Turkey were vital to their own defenses, they would be helping us pay these costs."

PUTTING McNAMARA ON SPOT — Morse has been equally scathing in grilling Secretaries Rusk and McNamara in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the heavily embattled foreign aid budget.

Castigating President De Gaulle and any attempt by the administration to appease him by "proposing more concessions," and sharply questioning the President's controversial multi-lateral nuclear naval force, Morse contended the time has come to "lay it on the line" to our NATO allies.

"If they want to go it alone," he declared, "it must be with the understanding that they pay their own way... We should consider seriously turning over the defense of Europe to Europe. If these nations believe large numbers of conventional forces are needed in Europe, they will be willing to furnish them themselves. And if they believe subsidies are needed for Spain, Greece, Turkey, Italy and other NATO members, they will see that they are paid."

Those Who Use Lawyer's Services
Most Trust Them Least

Almost four out of ten Americans have no legal protection or service whatsoever. Among us who are users, many think of lawyers only for the "must" services — accidents, damage suits, divorce. Few think of a lawyer as the guardian of the individual's rights and as offering services in the areas of taxes, real estate, business advice.

In general reputation, lawyers rate substantially below most other professions. The person who uses a lawyer actually has a lower opinion of the profession than the person who does not use one.

A majority of lawyers themselves believe they overcharge in certain fields — particularly when fees depend on results (contingent fees) and in personal injury cases. The public not only feels the same way about these fees but also is highly dissatisfied with the way most lawyers present bills for services rendered.

There's a shocking lack of confidence among large numbers about the possibility of getting a fair trial in the courts, opinion of traffic courts is abysmally low and the individual who has direct knowledge of the courts has less confidence in them than the person whose knowledge is restricted to TV, movies, newspapers, radio.

MOST LAWYERS THINK the best way to build a practice is through extra-practice activities (getting around and meeting people), but the fact is two-thirds of us choose a lawyer strictly on the basis of his general reputation for capability and honesty.

Only 35 per cent of us believe lawyers are honest.

These are some of the startling findings of the most comprehensive, probing study ever undertaken of any profession—in this case, the legal profession. The survey was initiated by the Missouri Bar almost three years ago, was conducted among over 5,000 individuals in the population balanced state of Missouri, was financed by the Pre-Hall Foundation, is released today by Prentice-Hall and will be the basis for a textbook in the future.

The legal profession will be pleased by few of the findings. Yet, the very criticism, based on so exhaustive a study, can make a major contribution to the legal profession's economic future and to the protection of the public.

THE BLUNT TRUTH IS that, for 25 years, the economic position of the legal profession has been declining in comparison with other professions.

There has been growing awareness that this has been due to the fact that millions who should be using legal services are not doing so and the millions of us who do use lawyers do not use them to the extent we should. Now this survey pinpoints the reasons — the public's ignorance of lawyers, lawyers perform, distrust of fees and courts, etc.

Of course, the aim of the Missouri Bar-Prentice-Hall study is to prod the organized profession into corrective measures. Among its specific recommendations are these:

The Code of Ethics governing the profession must be clarified and the lawyer educated to the extent to which he may go in giving us a "complete legal check-up" and to which he may ethically volunteer advice.

Lawyers must recognize that when they criticize an opposing counsel, a judge or jury, they are downgrading their entire profession in a client's mind. This criticism explains why users of lawyers have less respect for the profession than non-users.

Lawyers should discuss fees with us at the earliest opportunity. Should itemize their bills in detail. Fee schedules should be developed and encouraged and an effort should be made to achieve some degree of uniformity of fees on a state-wide basis.

The organized Bar should put strong emphasis on improvement on jury trial and court precedents and improvement of traffic courts should be a prime objective.

Many of this survey's conclusions will defy long-held assumptions of the legal profession, but, say the authors, "That has been the purpose: to separate facts from assumptions so that action programs can be taken" to improve practices of and our attitude toward the profession, and thus to improve the profession's economic status.

Salt Kills Tests

'Black Box' Atomic Detectors
Useless In Porous Fields

In the wonderland of governmental nonsense our Soviet test-ban negotiations are zooming toward an all-time high. Can't Congress or anyone force the abandonment of Deputy Secretary of State W. Averell Harriman's ridiculous, dangerous Moscow pitch as presently proposed?

Yet practically not any of the following is known to the American people:

First, President Kennedy's wattered — down after of unmanned seismograph "black boxes" to police Russian violations is as technically foolproof as a leaky bean bag.

Produce one scientist who says it may work and up pops another, like the great Dr. Edward Teller, who demonstrates that it would be as safe to depend on Jutting Jaw, the grotesque sleuth in the funnies.

The secret that permits Khrushchev to laugh at us is salt. Seismographs do not measure earthquake-shaking result. In short, they detect strain on strata — the pounding of the walls — and work back from that. If you knock on a door you get vibrations. Punch a pillow and you don't.

Thus the surrounding strata is decisive in detection. If the buried test pushes rock that's one thing. But nobody disputes that if you utilize salt domes, so that the explosion pushes porous salt, the explosion might as well give the "black boxes" to Caroline's pony.

Moreover, behind the scenes, we know this by our own tests. We ran secret tests (17) in salt caves near Winnfield, La., as long ago as December, 1959. How can the New Frontier ignore these?

In the negotiations I saw in Switzerland — there were 340 sessions across 34 months — the results was called the "decoupling" opportunity: The cheat can largely "decouple" the energy of many explosions from the surrounding earth.

How effective? The term kiloton means the equivalent of 1,000 tons — tons — of TNT. In our country beyond Louisiana, salt domes exist in Texas, New York and Kansas to make a 300-kiloton nuclear explosion look like a 10-kiloton shot, 100 like three, 50 like less than two.

British and American intelligence locates at least 100 Soviet salt domes merely between the south end of the Urals and the north shore of the Caspian Sea. In addition, the Siberian salt mines — salt domes — are legendary. Can Mr. Kennedy prohibit salt domes, too, in the Soviet Union?

As if this weren't dangerous enough, famous Dr. Teller and others have warned the President that by employing graphite or a similar dampener in these domes the decoupling trick can be enormously assisted.

Now let's talk money. Has anybody told the American people that the estimated cost of installing "black boxes" in Khrushchev's Russia alone exceeds $1 billion. Dr. Raymond Peterson, research director for the United Geophysical Corporation, will tell you it involves some nine million square miles, demanding as much as 21,000 miles of cables, including "in wild remote zones where temperatures go from 50 to 80 degrees below zero." And support expenses even dwarf the installation costs. For what? In truth, it would cost four times as much every year to run as the annual operating expense of the United Nations.

The White House has also not revealed the time required. Yet Mr. Kennedy is proposing something that would take three to five years to complete. Not a single White House insider can dispute that. Nor that the layout is subject to simple sabotage.

Your mind turns to Jimmy Durante's skit when his partner sits on the floor as if rowing a boat, shouting, "Jimmy Jimmy—we are lost at sea. What should we do?" You might think our test-ban approval is based on Jimmy's solution. "Pull for the horizon," he advised. "It's better than nothing."

In negotiating on-site inspection in Cuba, Mr. Kennedy kicked the ladder from under the minimum demands. Down came our nation's security like Humpty — Dumpty. He finally said of that demand on Khrushchev: "It's a dead issue. I guess."

"Black boxes" should be a dead issue before Mr. Harriman even starts negotiating in Moscow. In fact, why is he going?

LORD ASTOR INVOLVED

Christine Keeler Testifies To Affairs With Officials

LONDON (AP) — Christine Keeler told a court Friday she had sexual relations with former War Minister John Profumo for money, slept only one time with Soviet naval attaché Yevgeny Ivanov and Lord Astor once paid her rent.

The 21-year-old, self-styled model, her red hair falling over her face, was the first prosecution witness at a magistrate's hearing to decide whether society osteopath Dr. Stephen Ward, 50, must stand trial on vice charges. Ward introduced Christine to Profumo and Ivanov and also broke the scandal of the three-way relationship that ruined Profumo's career and almost toppled Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's Conservative government.

She gave Ward about half the money she got from men, Christine testified, but money and gifts from Profumo went to her mother.

Lord Astor, with "no ulterior motive," she said, once paid the rent on the apartment she shared with Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies, 18, who took the stand next.

"While I was living at the flat," said Mandy, a dimpled blonde, "I had intercourse with Lord Astor."

The girls, both beautiful, spilled a sensational story of sex in London's governmental, diplomatic and high society circles that seemed certain to rock the country as strongly as the original disclosures.

As prosecutor Mervyn Griffith-Jones outlined the background, Ward burst out: "It's quite untrue. It's quite untrue!"

His lawyer said the doctor would plead innocent to eight charges which include procuring, running a brothel, arranging abortions and living off the earnings of prostitutes.

Ward introduced Miss Keeler to Profumo at Lord Astor's estate, Cliveden, one of the stateliest homes in England prewar headquarters of the "Cliveden Set" presided over by Astor's mother.

She never saw the check itself, but added that "Ward told me it was a check of Lord Astor's and I knew it was, too."

Astor has been married three times. His current wife is former Brown Pugh, daughter of a high court judge.

Ward, wearing dark glasses and a green suit, listened intently to the stories the girls told. He had been brought to the court in handcuffs from Brixton Prison where he is being held without bail.

Miss Keeler said she had brought five or six women to Ward's fashionable apartment in Wimpole Mews and said she thought he made love to four of them.

After the girls left, Christine said she and Ward would talk about them.

"He used to discuss what he and the girl had done. He used to say 'That was wonderful,'" she said.

Griffith-Jones claimed Ward once took a shop girl to Cliveden where he slept with her, but the girl turned him down when he wanted her to go to a party "where she would see girls tied up and whipped."

The prosecutor said Ward had tried to get another "highly respectable" girl to go to an apartment where there was a mirror so persons in the living room could watch what was going on in the bedroom.

He said the girl refused because she wasn't interested in watching such things and added that Ward had really thought of her as a performer.

The two women for whom Ward allegedly obtained abortions were identified only by initials. The prosecutor said Miss Keeler helped Ward make the necessary contacts.

Miss Keeler brought another man into the case—a London businessman named Jim Elyan. She said Elyan, not otherwise identified, paid her $56 a night for sleeping with him.

This was the only specific figure mentioned so far. While Miss Keeler testified, Ward, on a backless bench in the prisoner's dock, sketched her face.

Reapportioning Meets Demands Of Citizens Suit

Stet Sen. J. D. DeBlieux of Baton Rouge on behalf of Thomas Daniel, Thomas N. Lockwood, Edward J. Lundin and Wilford H. Thomas.

The court, which delayed action on the suit to allow the legislature to act, left no doubt that it would have taken whatever steps were necessary.

"Jurisdiction over the subject matter," the court said, "rests on the court's determining that the reapportionment of the Louisiana House of Representatives is the effect of de basing the voting rights of the plaintiffs and the class they represent."

"Malapportionment of representation in the legislature amounting to invidious discrimination violates the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States."

The court said that the old reapportionment had invidiously discriminated against persons and voters in certain parishes.

The court also voiced some of its views on the role of federal judges in the field of reapportionment.

"The Supreme Court has not yet fixed boundaries for the role of courts in legislative reapportionment," the court said. "Nor has it established the standard courts must use in testing the constitutionality of reapportionment."

"Federal judges should tread lightly on ground historically within the province of state legislatures. Nevertheless we must fashion some test giving recognition to the right of the state's electorate to have adequate representation in state government."

"We conclude that legislative reapportionment complies with the

Upon hitting the springs, the bolt traveled to the head of the bed and bounced over to another bed shot down the springs to the foot, and grounded out against a lava-tory.

As the bolt bounced about the room, large strips of wallpaper were shredded. Neither boy was hurt, although one said he thought a bomb was thrown into the room and immediately left before the second could be tossed. The other occupant said, "The only thing I knew was that the Lord was with me."

ROCK 'N ROLL BAN

REHOBOTH BEACH, Del. (AP) — The Zenden Club, teen-age night club, is having some trouble making the scene this year.

The club, which sells only soda pop to its under-21 customers, is in trouble once more with the city fathers. The Town Council was disturbed last summer when the teen-agers danced to rock 'n' roll music on the sidewalk outside the establishment.

Soviet Chief Plunges Into Conferences

nos Kadar of Hungary and Todor Zhivkov of Bulgaria.

One notable absentee so far was Romania's President Gheorghe Gheorgiu-Dej. He is reported angry with the Kremlin's economic plans for Romania and that satellite's regime has recently made noises that suggest it might follow Albania and side with Red China in intra-Communist conflict.

If Khrushchev had any idea of waging a popularity contest with Kennedy in Berlin, he failed. Khrushchev drew crowds much smaller and much less enthusiastic than Kennedy did in West Berlin Wednesday.

But Khrushchev in Berlin apparently was preoccupied with the matters he was to take up with the satellite speeches. He made only indirect references to Kennedy, who now is in Ireland, and spoke in relatively mild terms of Communist glories.

Khrushchev made no threats toward the West nor did he praise Ulbricht, who advocates a more militant line toward the West on Berlin.

The Khrushchev speech disclosed in Moscow Saturday was made at a meeting of the Soviet Communist party.

Khrushchev apparently was speaking in reply to Kennedy's June 10 speech at American University in which Kennedy called for a new, determined effort to secure world peace and also announced high-level nuclear test ban talks would open in Moscow in mid-July.

Khrushchev told the Central Committee that Kennedy "has drawn the correct conclusion that it is necessary to reassess values, that it is necessary to take into account and reckon with the might of the forces of socialism, that it is necessary to change relations with the Soviet Union and so forth."

"You see how the President of the United States puts the question now? Of course, this does not mean, comrades—we need not delude ourselves—that the day of new relations has dawned already between the Soviet Union and the United States."

"No! But it is most noteworthy that this is what the President of the United States, the leader of the imperialist camp, says about our country."

"These words of his are not inspiring to his allies. If this is what the leaders of the United States say, what is it then that they in Norway, Denmark, Italy, France can possibly think?"

In Washington, there was no immediate official reaction from the State Department. Available sources inclined to the theory that Khrushchev was speaking in generalities aimed mainly at impressing Communist colleagues in his current dispute with Red China.

Khrushchev seemed to rule out any meaningful accord with the Communist Chinese in ideological talks set to open in Moscow July 5.

He insisted the Kremlin will not abandon its avowed policy of peaceful coexistence. The Chinese have assailed peaceful coexistence as too soft toward the West and have demanded the Kremlin scrap it.

"We regard the Leninist principle of peaceful coexistence as the general line of our foreign policy and consistently pursue it," Khrushchev said. "One cannot get peace by begging for it, but it can be won and we are winning it."

Khrushchev also accused the Chinese of resorting to the "racial approach" in their efforts to win ideological points. By this he meant Chinese efforts in places like Africa, where the Chinese have been pushing the idea that yellow and black peoples have more in common than Caucasian Russians and black Africans.

East German and Soviet officials in Berlin remained silent on the scope of the meeting of Communist leaders gathering here, insisting Khrushchev was merely joining in one big birthday party.

But significantly, Khrushchev has only one scheduled public appearance—a parade for Ulbricht's birthday—although he is expected to remain in East Berlin at least through Tuesday.

Communist affairs experts have long suspected that Romania's loyalty to Khrushchev was on the wane.

The suspicions increased two weeks ago when Romanian newspapers—alone among the press of the Soviet bloc—published the agenda suggested by the Chinese for the Moscow conference.

Peking's 30,000-word document in fact was the bitterest attack on Khrushchev the Chinese had made and virtually ruled out any prospect of compromise at the Moscow talks.

The Red Chinese Embassy in East Berlin distributed the document to newsmen here—and was publicly rebuked for it by the East German Foreign Ministry.

This unusual action indicated Ulbricht remained squarely on Khrushchev's side.

The Romanians are reported angry because the Kremlin wants to use that satellite as a source of agricultural products and raw materials in an integrated Soviet-East European economy. The Romanians are described as insisting on a bigger industrial role.

Ulbricht led the officials who turned out to welcome Khrushchev and his wife, Nina, on their arrival Friday. ADN said half a million East Berliners turned out to greet them. Western correspondents estimated the crowd at less than 250,000, compared to the West Berlin police estimate of 1.4 million who had cheered Kennedy.

They were identified as D.A. Van Epps, James Andrews, A.D. Hesko, and Michael Feischer. The plane developed engine trouble on a flight from Wheelus Air Force Base to Aden.

SIMILAR TO TOURISTS

Russian General Is Touring U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Similar to thousands of American tourists, a Soviet general is on the road this summer. The Army says it appears he is trying to see all he can of the United States.

He is Lt. Gen. Vladimir Dubovik, senior military attaché at the Soviet Embassy here for most of the past two years.

The general and an aide have been motoring through the East, Midwest and plains states since June 12 and are due back in Washington next Wednesday.

As on some 30 previous trips Dubovik has made since September 1961, the general filed a travel plan with the U.S. government.

The Army said his itinerary does not take him near U.S. military installations.

"We are satisfied that national security has not been endangered by this trip," the Army said.

Dubovik is not accompanied by any American escorts. But there is reason to believe the U.S. government keeps tabs on his movements.

Earlier this week, a Defense Department spokesman said the Soviet military attaché goes traveling every two weeks. This gave rise to questions about the pattern and reason for it.

The Army now says Dubovik makes trips periodically, but not every two weeks. And it indicates there is nothing out of the way about this.

According to Army records, only two of Dubovik's requests were rejected.

"He has been refused permission to cover certain areas by car and told that he could only travel over them by commercial aircraft," the Army said. "In these cases he has usually withdrawn his request."

About two-thirds of Dubovik's past journeys have been what the Army calls routine trips to New York in connection with the arrival or departure of other Russians or on business with the Soviet delegation at the United Nations.

On those New York jaunts, the Army said, he took the prescribed route and was away usually from two to five days.

Other trips were described as "of a recreation nature"—including one drive to nearby Laurel, Md., to watch Soviet horses compete in an international horse race.

On his present junket, Dubovik has been traveling with Maj. Vladimir Kalinin in an auto bearing District of Columbia diplomatic license tags. The Army said he has not had any U.S. military vehicles at his disposal.

So far, the general's itinerary has had him ranging as far west as the Dakotas. He is supposed to be in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., Friday.

Because of travel curbs imposed on U.S. officials in the Soviet Union, Soviet diplomats and others in Soviet delegations are limited to free movement within a 25-mile radius of Washington or New York.

When Soviet officials want to travel outside those perimeters, they must submit formal requests together with proposed itineraries. Few have been turned down, U.S. officials said.

Since about one-fourth of the Soviet Union is off-limits to American officials there, a comparable part of the United States is barred to Russians stationed in this country.

According to official records, there are about 350 Soviet diplomats and aides in the United States—some 200 in Washington and the rest in New York.

Travel applications from these groups come to about 30 to 40 a month, which U.S. authorities feel is not excessive.

American military attaches stationed at the embassy in Moscow do considerable traveling under similar circumstances.

Old Liberty Bell To Stay Silent On July Fourth

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — This Cradle of Liberty will lead the nation in grand style bell-ringing on the Fourth of July, but the bell that started all the jubilation back in 1776 must have an electronic replacement.

Voiceless since 1835, the Liberty Bell, world symbol of freedom, has to remain silent through an Independence Day celebration which seeks to recapture more of the spirit of the occasion in the nation's early years.

As the story goes, the Liberty Bell cracked 128 years ago as it tolled for the death of Chief Justice John Marshall. Since then millions have seen it, but none has heard it, except for slight token tones.

Suggestions that the bell be welded in the hope of restoring its tongue have met with outcries and protests.

Now under the dominion of the National Park Service, as is all else connected with Independence Hall, the Liberty Bell is on the ground floor of the hall, not in its accustomed place at the base of the tower, but in the main hallway. That is because of extensive structural work being done to strengthen all parts of the building.

There still would be a way to ring a bell live from Independence Hall, if it were not for that work. In the tower rests a big bell, installed in 1876, 100 years after the original was swung into place. Since the tower is being reinforced for safety, that bell, too, must be silent.

The park service feels rather chagrined about the situation, its spokesmen saying they'd like to ring the stand-in bell at least.

"These are things we can't change, however," they say, "and certainly a recording of bells is better than no bells at all."

Woman Slayer Found Innocent Due To Insanity

KENOSHA, Wis. (UPI) — Mrs. Helen Haukedahl was found innocent by reason of insanity Friday in the killing of her ex-poly chief husband's secretary in a love triangle.

Mrs. Haukedahl, 46, who had vowed throughout the trial that she still loved her husband although he preferred the company of the slain woman, Mrs. Dorothy Bitautis, 46, wept briefly when the verdict was returned.

Circuit Judge M. Eugene Baker received the verdict and said she still had one duty left, telling Mrs. Haukedahl: "Under Wisconsin statute I order you committed to Winnebago State Hospital."

Mrs. Haukedahl will be examined at the Winnebago State Hospital and confined for an indefinite time, until the hospital superintendent considers she has regained her sanity.

Her husband, Stanley, resigned shortly after Mrs. Bitautis, a widow, was shot. He quit under fire when the Kenosha mayor ordered an inquiry into his relationship with Mrs. Bitautis.

Boy Strangles Small Child In Field Of Oats

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—A 4-year-old girl was strangled in an oat field Friday and officials said an 11-year-old neighbor boy had admitted the slaying.

A search party found the body of Lynn Ann Kozlowski about two hours after she vanished from a playmate's yard.

Sheriff Joseph Trizna identified the boy as Kenneth David Warner.

After a hearing before Judge James W. Barr in Circuit Court, the boy was placed in custody of the sheriff and ordered detained in a juvenile home pending hearing on a delinquency petition.

The boy lives with his mother, Arlene Daniels, who has been married, and a brother and two sisters.

Trizna said the youth told him that he was not angry at the girl. The sheriff quoted the boy as saying he got the idea of strangling her from watching television.

The sheriff had said earlier the boy had made statements which indicated "he knows something about the slaying."

Lynn Ann was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kozlowski. The father is an inspector in the Caterpillar Tractor Co. plant in Joliet.

Mrs. Rasbury apparently lost control of her car, as no other vehicles were involved.

She was taken to a local hospital where she received emergency treatment and was reportedly suffering from knee fractures, cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries.

She was then transferred to the St. Francis hospital in Monroe.

Tory Critic Forecasts Civil War

ly to stay on as prime minister much beyond late summer.

Only Thursday the atmosphere of confusion and division worsened when a party caucus meeting wrangled bitterly over the leadership issue and maneuvers to keep him in office.

There were two qualifications in Macmillan's pledge. He left himself the chance to retire for health reasons if the going gets too touch. His reference to "all being well" could be taken to mean that his future rests on what support he can win.

One of the prime minister's most persistent critics within the Tory party reacted fast. Lord Lambton, who holds a courtesy title and thus sits in the House of Commons, warned there would be civil war in the Conservative party if Macmillan stayed on.

Macmillan told the crowd he had already given Parliament all the facts about the Profumo case that were in his possession.

"We are determined to have the truth, the whole truth—and let us face this plainly—nothing but the truth," he said.

"Meanwhile the British public, which I serve, has steadfastly refused to be stampeded."

Macmillan drew support from an unexpected quarter. Labor party leader Harold Wilson attacked the "Sack Macmillan" movement in sections of the conservative party and pleaded there be a truce, at least while he talks with President Kennedy.

Wilson, who was speaking at a party meeting in London, described those attending Thursday's Tory caucus as "aboriginal savages in a frenzied ritual dance with only one end in view—to obtain the prime minister's head as a sacrificial offering to expiate the collective anxieties of the Conservative party."

"However strong their feelings, they should, at any rate at this time, restrain their tribal enthusiasms instead of weakening what little authority Mr. Macmillan's government has in the conduct of important international negotiations," he said.

Relief Expected For East Areas

NEW YORK (AP) — The heat-air conditioning and refrigeration plagued Northeast was expected for thousands of residents. A 5-year-old boy was killed Thursday night in Brooklyn while playing with other children in front of an open fire hydrant to get relief from the heat. The boy, Michael Huey, fell and the force of the water pushed him under the wheels of a passing auto. Thousands of autos were backed up along the Belt Parkway in Brooklyn when the steel under-structure of a drawbridge expanded and the bridge would not close. would be cooler, with the high in the 80s. Last Sunday the high was 87. Thursday's high was 95.

Elsewhere in the Northeast, a gentle waft of cool Canadian air moved southward into New England, affording some relief from 90-degree temperature of the past four days.

However, the Weather Bureau in Boston expected the cooling to be confined to coastal sections of Maine, Massachusetts and New Hampshire. Inland, the temperatures were expected to remain in the 90s.

Widely scattered thundershowers were forecast for mountain areas of New Hampshire and Vermont with sunny skies expected elsewhere.

Officials in numerous municipalities issued emergency orders forbidding unnecessary use of water, including restrictions on outdoor bans on sprinkling lawns. Lack of rainfall and increased uses of water were blamed for water shortages over the area.

The temperature soared to a record 97 in Philadelphia on Thursday. The old top for the date there was 95 set in 1952. City officials worried that opening of fire hydrants by citizens would cause a water shortage.

The Farmington, Maine, water district, which has had a one-hour daily limit on use of sprinklers and hoses since Tuesday, ordered a full ban on such use starting Monday. The town's reservoir was down from five million gallons to two million.

Newark, N.J., after two straight days of 90-degree heat, clamped down on unauthorized opening of fire hydrants. There were more than 250 calls to shut off hydrants. The city used 10 million gallons more water Thursday than it normally does.

Early Friday, a power failure blacked out part of Westchester County, a suburban area north of New York City, knocking out fans.

Mexicans Arrest 3 Exile Cubans

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Eight anti-Castro Cubans were arrested Friday in investigation of an alleged plot to sabotage three Cuban freighters which loaded 5,000 tons of food for Cuba at the port of Veracruz last week. Among those detained was Carlos Fernandez Trujillo, who for several years has headed the exile Cuban Revolutionary Council here, and another council leader, Dimas Figueredo.

The Cuban freighters, the Oriente, Las Villas and Bahia de Sigüanea, left Thursday for Havana with heavy cargoes of rice, beans and onions. Cuban nationals arrested at Veracruz were identified also as Revolutionary Council members there. They had been living in Veracruz state for some time.

Youth Beaten, Chained By Own Mother

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Nine-year-old Antonio Valenzuela lay naked and bent double on the concrete floor of his home, his hands and feet chained to a washing machine and his body a mass of welts and bruises. "Whenever mother leaves the house she ties me up," he told police. Neighbors said chains and beatings have been his lot since he was 5.

Police were searching for the mother, Mrs. Carolina Valenzuela, a divorcee who works as a waitress in El Paso.

Neighbors finally decided to do something about the suffering of Antonio Thursday. They called the Rev. Peter Martinez, a Catholic priest. Horrified, the priest called the police and they went to the Valenzuela home in suburban Ysleta.

LAY ON FLOOR

Antonio lay on the floor, next to a cinder block wall, wrists and ankles manacled together with two lengths of chain that was locked around a bar on the washing machine and fastened with locks.

"Mother hit me because of the way I made coffee this morning," Antonio said.

His wrists and ankles were cut by the chains. His body was bruised and welts. Neighbors charged he was whipped with the handle of a flyswatter.

Rushed to a hospital, Antonio was found to be suffering from malnutrition.

A court order made him a ward of the child welfare agency and he was placed temporarily in a foster home pending outcome of the case.

Looking for Mother

A search began for Mrs. Valenzuela. Police questioned the boy's father, but he said he knew nothing of his former wife.

Mrs. Valenzuela took her two-year-old daughter, Carol, with her when she left the house.

Antonio spoke matter-of-factly about his treatment.

He said his mother made him sleep outdoors.

Neighbors testified that they had seen the boy chained naked in a chair outside the home.

Police drew up charges of child neglect and assault against the mother.

Negro Admits Area Killing

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — A Negro man has admitted killing Ruby Cain, 28-year-old Negro woman, who was beaten to death with a two-by-four at her home here early Thursday morning.

Robert Brown, 29, issued a statement Friday. He admitted going to the Cain house at 1:30 a.m., breaking in a window and beating Ruby Cain with the board.

Eight-year-old Harold Cain Jr., son of the dead woman, positively identified Brown in a line-up Thursday night as the man who beat his mother.

Harold and his sister Jo Ann, 6, were awakened by sounds of a fight Thursday morning and ran to their grandmothers' house about six blocks away. Alma Roland, the grandmother, called the police.

Brown gave no reason whatsoever for killing the woman, according to East Carroll Parish Sheriff J. W. Gilbert.

U. S., Russians Plan High Level Test Ban Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed on July 15 for the opening of new high-level nuclear test ban talks in Moscow, U.S. officials said Friday.

President Kennedy announced on June 10 there was basic agreement for the Moscow talks, but the time was then given only as "mid-July."

Kennedy has named W. Averell Harriman, undersecretary of state for political affairs, to head the U.S. delegation.

ever for killing the woman, according to East Carroll Parish Sheriff J. W. Gilbert.

Gilbert said Brown told him that he went to his house two blocks away after the killing. He washed his clothes, changed clothes, returned to the Cain house and was there when the ambulance arrived.

MICKEY MANTLE walks to Yankee Stadium Friday without the aid of crutches to begin taking daily treatments. He had been expected to return immediately after the All-Star game but on arrival in New York Mantle said, "I don't see how I'll be able to play in two weeks. It will be at least 10 days before I can start running. Right now I can't hardly walk." (AP Wirephoto)

Seventh Inning Rally Halts N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Boston Red Sox, no-hit by young Al Downing through six innings, broke loose for three runs in the seventh and scored the tie-breaker in the eighth for a 4-3 victory Friday night over the New York Yankees.

Frank Malzone drove in the winning run with an infield hit off reliever Hal Reniff with one out in the eighth, following a walk

Kirkland Bunts To Keep Chisox From 1st Place

CHICAGO (AP)—Willie Kirkland's two-out squeeze bunt in the ninth inning chased home the winning run as Cleveland edged the Chicago White Sox 4-3 Friday night after the Indians' Early Wynn had lost another opportunity to win his 300th game.

The loss kept the White Sox from taking over first place in the American League from the New York Yankees, who were beaten 4-3 by Boston.

Wynn, 43-year-old veteran, left after six innings, trailing 3-2. It marked the second Friday night in succession the White Sox had stopped him in his bid to become the 14th major league pitcher to hit the 300-victory level. Chicago beat Wynn 2-0 at Cleveland last week.

With Wynn leaving, the victory went to the third Tribe pitcher, Ted Abernathy, who took over from Bob Allen to start the eighth.

Trailing 3-2 starting the ninth, Cleveland scraped together two runs off Jim Brosnan, who relieved starter Dave DeBusschere, a 22-year-old rookie seeking his first major league victory.

West Depends On Long TD's For Triumph

By MARVIN R. PIKE
BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Coach John McKay will count on a couple of long runs and passes for a victory by the West over the favored East tonight in the third annual All-America football game at War Memorial Stadium.

A crowd of 30,000 is expected. The game will start at 7:30 p.m. EST, and will be telecast nationally at 9 p.m. EST, by ABC-TV. The Weather Bureau forecast scattered thundershowers but said there was a better than even chance none would be in the stadium area at kickoff time. Temperatures were expected to be warm and the humidity high.

McKay, who coached Southern California to the National Football championship last fall, seemed concerned over whether the West could penetrate the East's heavier line.

"We certainly aren't going to be able to push the East around," he said. "They're too big."

"We have to figure on shaking Kermit Alexander (UCLA) or Ronnie Goodwin (Baylor) or someone else loose for long runs, and have Bill Nelsen (Southern California) connect on some long passes."

"Bill will have to have an outstanding night for us to win."

Coach Milt Bruhn and his staff decided to start Penn State's Roger Kochman at fullback for the East instead of John Mackey of Syracuse.

Working with Kochman in the starting backfield will be quarterback Ron Vanderkelen of Southern California and South Carolina's Billy Gambrell and Michigan State's George Saimes.

The West backfield will comprise Nelsen, Alexander, Goodwin and Nebraska's Bill Thornton.

McKay's probable starters in the line will be ends, Hugh Campbell, Washington State, and Conrad Hatcher, Missouri; tackles, Bobby Lee Bell, Minnesota, and Ron Snidow, tackles; guards, Tom Hertz, Missouri, and Duane Kirk, Nebraska; center, Jerry Hopkins, Texas A&M.

THE SPORTS SCENE

with Keith Prince

On The Greens

The biggest thing around our area in the golfing circles is the upcoming Kraft Paper Golf Tournament scheduled July 4th through the 7th at the Morehouse Country Club in Bastrop.

This fine tourney, one of the oldest in the south has repeatedly attracted the top amateurs in the country.

Its list of winners since the meet began in 1931 reads like a who's who of the amateur ranks.

Some of the most recent winners whose names are familiar to all from their success in the pro ranks are Freddie Haas, Tommy Bolt, Bert Weaver, Butch Baird and Jacky Cupit.

Last year's champion, Burt Burdick of Baton Rouge, was expected to be one of the top favorites again this year but he's involved in another little affair right now—with Uncle Sam, and won't be able to appear.

The tourney is limited to the first 144 players and more than $3,000 in prizes will be given winners of various flights.

The most recent Monroe winner was Jack Rivers who captured first prize in 1957.

Anyone interested in entering the tourney should contact Don Sims, former winner of the meet who is head of the tournament committee, Derrall Foreman, president of the Morehouse Country Club or Leonard Warren, the host professional.

Golf around Monroe has not provided any earth shaking news this week. The biggest thing since our last report was Sunday's Four - Ball meet at Municipal.

Our congratulations go out to George Luffey and partner Buckey McLemore who "surprised a few" with their fine victory.

Talking with Luffey, the personable Northeast State baseball coach, before the tournament, we nearly got the impression that he was rather dreading playing in the championship flight. It's just another example of athletes performing better when the competition is expected to be extremely rough.

Bob Creighton is also due for some credit with his tremendous double eagle during the meet. It came on the ninth hole when he and his partner Sam Rizzo were batting for second place. A par on the hole would have put them in fourth place, a birdie would have given them a tie for third place.

But Bob came through with his 260 - yard wood shot which plopped into the hole for a whirlwind second place finish. It was a real clutch shot.

All juniors are invited to free instructions at MUNY this morning at 9:00. It's a chance to combine fun with work and improve your golfing game.

Highland Park has a big Scotch-Foursome tourney slated July 4th. Any member is invited to enter. About 30 couples are expected for the nine hole contest.

Frank Eastman was seen at Bayou DeSiard firing a brilliant 66 shortly before entering the hospital to have his knee operated on earlier this week. Hurry up and get well Frank all your friends at the club join in wishing you a speedy recovery.

Lester High was seen in Kansas City being fitted for woods by Kenneth Smith. Guess L. D. will be hitting the road for KC pretty soon now. Can't let his partner outdo him.

Henry Cole, Rickey Highland and Henry Hinkle were working hard sharpening up their game recently for the upcoming Kraft tournament.

David Marchman looked real tough on the greens with his new shafted putter. Dr. Rayburn Smith was working diligently the other day trying to help a certain golf pro with his game.

All the juniors are still hard at work at Bayou DeSiard. There was an increase of about 10 members in Tuesday's Play - Day which Steve Mintz won. Hugh Able was first low net and Dickie Touchstone had second low net.

Bob Courson, C. B. McMann and Walter Crowe were seen heading toward Tupelo, Miss. We'll be disappointed if they don't bring back some hardware from the senior tourney they are entering.

In The Gutter

Big news at Bowlero this week is the beginning of a new mixed-scoutch doubles league every Sunday night. It's something new in the Twin Cities and should provide plenty of family fun for all. Starting time is 7:30 and the first round opens Sunday.

Charles McClain and Steve Flannery bowled their way to the championship of last Saturday's junior doubles tourney. But some of the spotlight was held by young Alex Pnag who fired a fine 204 for individual honors.

The Saturday attraction is off to a fine start and all kids from six to 17 are invited to come on out. You might go home with a bundle of records, a trophy or some other prize.

Mentioning some of the individual events which are now taking place at bowling alleys everywhere brings to mind just how much bowling is growing all over America and how it is becoming a part of our everyday life.

There are over 10 million people today who bowl, many of them regularly — but also there is so very many who are not bowling now simply because they don't think the facilities are there.

This may sound silly but it is true. There are people throughout the country who would like to bowl but feel like it is too difficult to get a lane or to learn how to bowl.

But this is not the case now. Granted, when the bowling boom first hit the country it was hard to just walk into a bowling establishment and promptly acquire a lane. The reason was because bowling was new. Everyone wanted to try it and therefore it was too crowded to get a lane.

Now there are plenty of bowling alleys and room for everyone. Don't be bashful about bowling. Every bowling place has instructors there who will be glad to assist you in learning. Just pick up a phone and call the bowling alley in your town.

It is very simple and it will grow on you. Bowling is fun, family fun, and will serve as part of the recreation which the folks of our country need.

Sincere Salute

A sincere salute goes out this week to a very brave young man from Newellton who is battling for his health.

This boy, George Cooper, is presently confined to St. Francis Hospital with pneumonia. He entered the hospital last week after plans had been made by doctors to do major surgery on him for a lung disorder.

The outstanding athlete at Newellton suffered a lick on his chest in spring practice and recently suffered another lick on it while playing around a swimming pier at a lake. Now since entering St. Francis the pneumonia has attacked him, causing a delay in his operation.

We are very optimistic about George for one simple reason. He is a boy willing to fight, willing to push himself for victory. He has already proven this.

From the time he was old enough to hold a ball, George has played sports. In Little League, Pelican League and now Dixie Senior League he has been an outstanding performer. He has participated in every sport at Newellton and has excelled in all.

This past season George, who is a natural quarterback, played halfback — because this was where the team needed strength. He gave it strength.

Marrus Starts Ruston Victory

RUSTON (Special) — Robert Marrus hit a home run in the second inning to start Ruston's 4-0 shutout over Bastrop Friday in an American Legion Amateur game.

Alden Reeves followed Marrus, singling and stealing second.

appreciate it and will respond to it.

The 17 - year - old senior knows how to fight and he knows victory. We believe he will continue to fight and continue to win.

Melvin Shows doubled him in. Curtis Barham hit a sacrifice bunt to score Shows and Barham made third after the pitcher threw wild to first. Reggie Cassidy dropped a bunt down the third base line to plate Barham.

Cassidy took the win, giving up only three hits. Rickey Reynolds was charged with the loss. Score by innings:

Bastrop 000 000 0-0 3-1
Ruston 040 000 0-4 5-1

DERRALL FOREMAN, left, president of the Morehouse Country Club, and Don Sims, head of the tournament committee proudly display the first place trophy which will be awarded to the winner of this year's Kraft Paper golf meet. The tourney will begin July 4th and run through the 7th.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Minnesota Twins ran their winning streak to six straight and made it seven in a row over Washington, trouncing the Senators twice in their Friday night doubleheader.

Bill Pleis started and won the opener, his first decision of the season. Jim Kaat won the nightcap with help from Bill Dailey who made his ninth appearance in the last 13 days.

Harmon Killebrew and Earl Battey each slammed their 17th homers in the first game and Vic Wertz and John Goryl homered for the Twins in the second.

Killebrew had six hits in the two games and five runs batted in.

Pittsburgh Gives Craig His 10th Straight Defeat

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bill Virdon's two-run homer and strong pitching by Joe Gibbon and Al McBean led Pittsburgh to a 3-1 victory over the New York Mets Friday night as Roger Craig lost his 10th straight.

Virdon's home run into the upper deck in right field, his third of the season, came with two out after Dick Schofield had reached base on a fielder's choice.

The Pirates added an insurance run in the seventh when Bob Bailey singled, advanced on a sacrifice and scored on Schofield's single.

Gibbon, now 3-5, yielded the Mets' run in the fifth.

Al Moran led off the inning and reached base on shortstop Johnny Logan's error. Craig singled to right, sending Moran to third, and Moran scored when Bailey took the relay and threw wild to first trying to catch Craig.

Gibbon, who allowed only three hits in the first six innings, gave way to McBean after Moran singled in the seventh and Craig sacrificed him to second. McBean retired the next two men on groundout and then held the Mets scoreless in the final two innings.

DOWNTRODDEN DETROIT

Tigers Split Pair With Los Angeles

DETROIT (AP)—Rocky Colavito's homer—his second of the game—highlighted a seven - run outburst in the eighth inning that lifted the downtrodden Detroit Tigers to an 8-3 victory over the Los Angeles Angels and a split of their Friday night doubleheader.

The Angels won the opener 8-3 as Leon Wagner clubbed two homers and two singles, driving in four runs. That extended the Tigers' latest losing string to five.

He used a six - iron for the 175 yard shot.

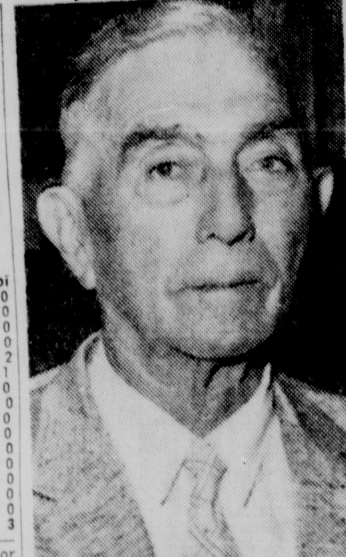

Nichols made his other ace at Bayou DeSiard early in the spring of 1962.

Horse Racing

Bill Proposed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Quarter-horse racing at downstate pari-mutuel tracks would be allowed under a bill sent to Gov. Otto Kerner Thursday by the Illinois Senate.

Sen. David Davis said Illinois has become the breeding center for the animals. Originally range-bred, they are called quarter-horses because of their great speed in running a quarter of a mile.

Warren Breaks Jinx & Dodgers, Back On 3-Hitter

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Warren Spahn retired the first 19 batters in order, finished with a three-hitter and broke a 15-year jinx Friday night as the Milwaukee Braves defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0.

It was the first time since Aug. 21, 1948, that Spahn had beaten the Dodgers in their park. He had dropped 14 decisions on Dodger home fields since then.

The shutout was his third this season and the 58th of his 19-year major league career.

The Braves got the only run of the game in the first inning. Lee Maye opened with a single, Ed Mathews walked and Henry Aaron singled, loading the bases. Maye came home on a long sacrifice fly by Joe Torre.

The Braves got seven hits off Don Drysdale, who went the distance and suffered his ninth loss against nine victories.

Milwaukee Manager Bobby Bragan was ejected for the first time this season when he made a sweeping bow to plate umpire Ed Vargo after an argument over a called strike in the eighth.

McKinley Gains Quarter-Final

By JOHN FARROW
WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Chuck McKinley, who has yet to lose a set, pounded his way into the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon tennis tournament Friday despite rain and a slippery court that slowed his normal bounce to a lope.

McKinley, 22, from St. Louis, clipped 21-year-old Jaidip Muker-jea, the Indian No. 2 entry, 6-3, 8-6, 6-3, in the fourth round.

The only other American survivor of the 20 Yanks who started, Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., is scheduled to play Roger Taylor of Britain in a fourth round match today.

Fred Stolle of Australia, Manuel Santana, the No. 2 seed from Spain, and Christian Kuhnke of Germany won their way into the round of eight.

Kuhnke knocked out No. 7 seed Jan Eric Lundquist of Sweden, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2. Lundquist was the fourth of the eight seeded players to be eliminated.

Stolle whipped Antonio Palafox of Mexico 7-5, 6-3, 6-3 and Santana won out over Adrian Bey of Rhodesia 6-3, 6-1, 11-13, 6-3.

McKinley will meet either Martin Mulligan, last year's losing finalist and No. 5 seed, or Bobbie Wilson, British Davis Cupper, in the quarter-finals. The American, No. 1 U.S. player, is seeded fourth.

Mrs. Donna Floyd Fales of New York joined two other American girls—Darlene Hard and Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Cal.—in the fourth round—the last 16.

Mrs. Fales advanced when Mrs. Vera Sukova of Czechoslovakia, affair, Mason & Pearson plated a run in the bottom of the eighth to defeat Monroe Concrete. Gary Audrich and Mike Albritton had two hits each for the winning club.

Two Americans were beaten. Mrs. Dorothy Head Knobe of Can-al Zone, Panama, mother of two, was defeated by Mrs. Lorna Cawthorn of England, mother of three, 6-3, 7-5.

Fifth-seeded Jan Lehane of Australia trimmed Tory Ann Fretz of Harrisburg, Pa., 8-6, 5-4.

Next opponents for the Americans are Christine Truman of Britain for Mrs. Fales, and Lesley Turner of Australia, No. 2 seed, for Miss Moffitt.

Rain halted play twice and left the courts so slippery that McKinley was forced to abandon his normal gymnastic manner.

Besides the Froehling - Taylor and Mulligan-Wilson matches, two other fourth round tests remain.

Top - seeded Roy Emerson of Australia meets Ramanathan Krishnan of India and Wilhelm Bungert of Germany plans Jose Arilla of Spain.

Soviet Ships Sailing Past Search Area

ABOARD THE USS FORT SNELLING AT SEA (UPD) — search area Friday, the fifth Soviet vessel to penetrate the area since last Sunday. Another Russian ship sailed through the submarine Thresher. The vessel was identified as the

"Pushkin," a "mother ship" used to supply Soviet trawlers operating off the U.S. coast. The bathyscaphe Trieste was on the surface when Pushkin steamed into the search zone, so Navy support vessels made no effort to divert the Russian craft. Pushkin sailed past about four miles from the Trieste, which was being prepared for its fourth dive today in the search for the ill-fated nuclear attack submarine. The Soviet passage through the area was the fifth apparent violation of a "notice to mariners" issued by the Navy April 22 requesting vessels of all nations to stay clear of a circular area 50 miles across where the $45 million submarine sank April 10 with 129 men aboard. Thursday three vessels, two of them known to be Russian and the third unidentified, entered the area. One Soviet trawler supply ship was twice diverted by the Fort Snelling when it tried to steam through the search zone while the Trieste was on the bottom. The Navy wants no ships on the surface when the Trieste is submerged. If it were forced to surface suddenly, it could be cut in two by the hull of a ship overhead and plunge to the bottom with no hope of rescue for its two-man crew.

Miss Howard gave a demonstration on freezing fruits and vegetables and Carol, who is giving demonstrations in preparation for 4H Short Course, explained variations in biscuits.

Officers for the coming year were elected. They are president, Mrs. F. D. Goulette; vice-president, Mrs. J. T. Wiggins; secretary, Mrs. C. O. Beck; reporter, Mrs. Otha Branch; and council members, Mrs. J. E. McCall and Mrs. T. K. Bradley.

Announcement was made of the HD Council meeting June 28 with Mrs. Vera Guillory, associate Home Management Specialist, who will demonstrate "posture in doing housework."

Present were Mrs. T. K. Bradley, Mrs. C. O. Beck, Mrs. George Vining, Mrs. Frank Goulette, Mrs. Otha Branch, Mrs. P. S. Lee, Miss Eunyce Howard, Mrs. J. L. Wiggins, Mrs. R. G. Wiggins and eight other visitors, including three 4-Hers.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Prepare Hamburgers In Foil For Cook-Out

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise: Campers and picnickers might like our suggestion for making hamburger patties. I wrap them in foil and put them in the freezer and when collecting our food for the outing, I put them in an ice cream bag. By the time we get to the camp and the fire is lit they are all thawed and ready to pop on the wire grill and are done in a jiffy. I season them with salt and pepper, etc., before wrapping them in the foil. I do not remove the foil when cooking. All of the juices stay inside and they never get burned this way.

Dear Ladies: Today, when I took my daughter to the doctor and was sitting in the waiting room (waiting as we all do) I sat next to a young mother and her darling ten-month-old girl. As soon as the young mother sat down, she and her baby started looking through her purse. I was surprised when the mother pulled out a small wax paper sack of dry cereal. Not the flakey kind... but the larger firmer breakfast cereal.

which can be purchased in any grocery store. The little angel sat there on her mother's knee as quiet as you please and munched on dry cereal. It is nourishing, not sticky, easy to carry, and filling for the child. Even though the child was waiting to see a doctor, which sometimes is unsettling, she and her mother were calm... cool... contented... with cereal.

Dear Heloise: For years I have worn two-tone shoes. I have slopped, brushed, wiped and spilled either the white shoe polish on the brown leather or I get the brown shoe polish on the white part.

Then came the dawn... I went to my dime store and bought a small paint brush, thinned my white shoe polish with some water and now paint as beautifully as Picasso. I can clean them in half the time this way too. I apply the dark polish first, get out my paint brush and start creating. John Green

Dear Heloise: A handy kit for the ladies who use those wire-mesh hair curlers. Instead of wetting your hair for in-between jobs - wet the curler! Dries much faster! I do this because of long hair and a drying

Lenna Armstrong Feted At Two Mer Rouge Parties

Miss Lenna Armstrong of Mer Rouge, bride-elect of Donald James Fries, was complimented with two parties recently. A kitchen gadget shower was given on Saturday, June 22 in the home of Mrs. Ray Windsor Jr. Co-hostesses were Mrs. R. C. Windsor Sr., Mrs. Willis Montgomery and Mrs. W. A. Porch.

Miss Armstrong chose a dull green linen dress with matching jacket for the occasion. Her corsage was of miniature fruits. A plump chef centered the kitchen table around which the shower gifts were placed. The refreshment table was beautiful.

Dear Heloise: Here's another way to save washing some dishes: Use a recently opened can (for example: your asparagus can) after it has been emptied to stir up the flour and water thickening for your cream sauce! After using, just throw it in the garbage container and save yourself the task of washing a sticky bowl or cup. Leitha Slavin

Dear Heloise: After redecorating my kitchen, my step-stool chair was completely out of harmony with my new color scheme. I could not afford to discard it as it was a good chair so I took a bath towel of the right color and made a slipcover for the back and cut a round piece for the seat and put elastic in the hem and snapped it around the chair post in the back. I also made slip covers of the same colored bath towels for the backs of my other kitchen chairs so they would not mark the woodwork in the kitchen when they hit the wall. I have a small kitchen and the terry cloth is easy to launder and does not have to be ironed.

Not only are these terry cloth covers warmer in cool weather but cooler in the summer to either sit or lean back upon. Mrs. E. Mullin

Dear Heloise: If you need an extra double boiler... take one of those small pie tins and punch a good size hole or holes in it. Turn this upside down in the water of a larger pot and your smaller pot will fit on it without any trouble at all. "Home Executive"

East Carroll Club Makes Garden Tour

The East Carroll Garden Club concluded the year's activities with a tour of members' daily gardens and a short business meeting. The club will resume regular monthly sessions in the fall. Members met at Twin Oaks, home of Mrs. E. D. Schneider, going on to the gardens of Mrs. C. R. Evans, Mrs. C. A. Rose and Mrs. W. Y. Bell to view the daylilies in full bloom. At the home of Mrs. Bell refreshments were served with Mrs. C. R. Brown and Mrs. Don Davis as co-hostesses.

In the short business meeting which followed, Mrs. C. R. Brown, president, presided and Mrs. C. A. Rose acted as secretary. Mrs. Brown appointed a program committee consisting of Mrs. W. P. Key, Mrs. D. F. Davis, Mrs. Frank Phillips and Mrs. W. Y. Bell.

In a discussion concerning program suggestions Mrs. W. H. Howington Jr., member of the Sprig and Twig Club, asked if the club would be interested in a workshop and exchange of programs. Members agreed this would be a fine idea.

Mrs. Brown reported on progress of work on the community meeting room in the Old Court House.

Present for this final meeting were Mrs. H. P. DuBoise, Mrs. J. C. Bass, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Brown, Miss Eunice Howard, Mrs. H. L. Kennedy, Mrs. W. P. Key, Mrs. W. H. Mabey, Mrs. Frank Phillips, Mrs. E. DEAR ABBY

That Horror-Look Is The Fashion Now, Sir

By ABBIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: There isn't a day that goes by that my 18-year-old daughter doesn't read every word you write. Maybe you will help me out by telling her something I don't have the heart to tell her. She is scaring me off with her make-up. She is a sweet, wonderful girl, but when she is through with the paint brush she looks like something else. It is something new with her. Her once beautiful eyes now look like something from a horror magazine. I have nothing against make-up, but I hate that cheap, artificial look. I want my daughter to look sweet, wholesome and natural as she used to. SAD DAD

Newcomers Meet With Mrs. Yeager

Mrs. Richard Yeager was hostess at her home on Eason Place Wednesday evening for the monthly meeting of the Catholic Newcomers Club.

Following the meeting, members made up tables for cards, with two tables of Canasta and one of bridge.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Larry Ferraci, who had the high score in canasta, and Mrs. Jarnagin, low. High bridge score was won by Mrs. Edward A. Burns, with low going to Mrs. Roger Larsen.

Others attending the evening get-together were Mrs. Joe Housley, Mrs. Troy Francis, Mrs. Richard Driscoll, Mrs. W. L. Licht and Mrs. Vic Rivoire.

DEAR ABBY: Please save me and "my" parishioners from further blunders. The wedding season is upon us again, and I would appreciate your printing an answer to this question: Is the minister's wife automatically invited to every wedding in her husband's church?

I have never attended a wedding as a guest unless I have been specifically invited. Yet many parishioners have told me afterwards that they "expected" me, and were very disappointed when I didn't show up.

MINISTER'S WIFE: DEAR WIFE: You, my dear, are correct. Nobody is "automatically" invited anywhere. If the Reverend and Mrs. So and So are expected to attend an invitational affair, they should be sent an invitation. DEAR ABBY: At the place where I work there is a girl who despises me, although I don't know why. When I speak to her she turns her head. I am being married soon and wanted to send all my co-workers individual wedding invitations. Not wanting to leave her out, I asked a co-worker for her address. When she found out who the address was for she refused to give it out. Still trying to be friendly, I sent her an invitation to our place of employment. She returned it to me through a foreman. Did I do the right thing in sending her an invitation? And wasn't she wrong to return it to me?

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here we are at the end of June. So far, what has the summer done to you and what have you done with it?

Have you taken advantage of benefits of this season or have you gone along more or less as usual? This is the time to slow down your usual pace as many civic, school and church activities stop for a while now. Why not add a mid-day nap or rest to your routine and take time out for sun-baths.

Also, don't pass up that health and beauty building sport, swimming. It is so pleasant and relaxing to swim in the sea, lake, river or a pool.

With time speeding past so rapidly, the entire season may go before we know it and before we derive any of the pleasures and benefits we had planned to receive from it.

If you do begin to be outdoors more of the time, remember to protect your complexion and

Health Unit's Okay Is Needed

FARMERVILLE (Special) - Parish health units will be delegated to approve sewerage disposals and water wells on camps on D'Arbonne Lake, according to Armond F. Rabun said the health units "of the respective parishes involved" will issue certificates of approval before the operation and maintenance of any well or sewerage disposal facility is permitted in close proximity to the lake, or which might drain into the lake.

THIS WAS THE CIVIL WAR

By MERTON T. AKERS
United Press International
Rep. Jacob B. Blair entered the White House through a window early in the morning of New Year's Day 1863.

Blair, a western Virginia congressman, was looking for information — not bent on burglary. The information he wanted was vital to western Virginians who were battling to break away from the Old Dominion so they could form a new state and join the Northern side in the Civil War.

Congress earlier had passed the bill which would enable the western Virginians to set up their state.

On New Year's Eve the bill of the state was on President Lincoln's desk, neither signed nor vetoed. That was the last day on which Lincoln acted.

The President had not made up his mind when the western Virginians, nervous about the fate of the bill they had worked on so long and so hard, went to the White House at 7 p.m. on New Year's Eve to present their case again.

Sen. Waltman T. Willey and Rep. William G. Brown accompanied Blair. They and the other western Virginians in Congress had been seated as representatives of the state of Virginia.

Virginia had seceded from the Union in the spring of 1861 and its congressional delegation had been withdrawn. The western counties of the state refused to go along with the Tidewater and Piedmont section of the state which may east of the Allegheny Mountains.

The majority of opinion in the western counties was against slavery and especially bitter against the eastern part of the state. The western Virginians accused the eastern Virginians of discrimination on taxation and improvements and claimed they were not equally represented in the legislature.

They formed a government, calling it the Restored Government, and elected Francis H. Pierpont as governor. They also elected a legislature and a congressional delegation. The Washington administration recognized the Restored Government and Congress seated the delegation after a brief debate.

But Lincoln was doubtful about the constitutionality of making western Virginia a state. The Constitution says that when a state is formed from the territory of another state, the original state must approve. Lincoln was not sure the legislature of the Restored Government had the power to approve formation of another state although it had formally done so. Some two-thirds of the state of Virginia was not represented in the Restored Government legislature.

The President also doubted the expediency of forming the new state. He felt it might set a precedent for reconstruction of the Union after the war, a pattern which might complicate the problem.

"The division of a state is dreaded as a precedent," Lincoln wrote. "But a measure made expedient by a war is no precedent for times of peace. It is the admission of West Virginia as a secession, and tolerated only because it is our secession. Well, if we can call it by that name, there is still difference enough for Secession against the Constitution, and Secession in favor of the Constitution."

The President and the western Virginia congressmen talked three hours that night, going over the arguments. The cabinet was divided. Secretary of State William H. Seward, Secretary of Treasury Salmon P. Chase and Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton favoring admission and Attorney General Montgomery Blair and Secretary of Navy Gideon Welles opposing.

At the end of the conference Lincoln told the congressmen that he had a seventh opinion that strongly influenced him but he did not tell the delegation whose opinion it was and whether it was for or against admission.

The delegation left at 10 p.m. no wiser than it had been at 7 p.m. But Blair did obtain permission from the President to see him early the next morning and learn the verdict.

How Blair got into the White House at dawn the next morning is not clear yet. One version is that he went in through a window and into the President's bedroom where Lincoln was just arising and still in his long red flannel nightshirt.

The version which seems nearest to the truth was written by Mrs. Anna Pierpont Switzer, daughter of Governor Pierpont, in her book called "Recollections of War and Peace." She wrote: "The messenger (Mr. Blair) scarcely slept that night, and was up at daybreak, and waiting outside the White House doors long before they were opened. When an obliging housemaid happened to throw wide a long window the visitor quietly slipped in and made his way to the President's office. Again the adventurous Virginian had to wait; but although it was New Year's Day, and no business was to be transacted, the President soon came in. He greeted Mr. Blair cheerily, and then going to his desk took out a document. 'Here is your bill,' he said. 'Do you see the signature?' Mr. Blair read. 'Approved — A Lincoln.'"

Four days before he was assassinated nearly two years later Lincoln revealed the mysterious "seventh opinion" to Governor Pierpont.

"During the conversation," Pierpont wrote, "the President remarked that he believed he had never told me of the turning point with him in considering the West Virginia bill."

A last minute telegram from Pierpont saying all was lost in West Virginia if the bill failed convinced the President.

"That," Lincoln said, "was the turning point in my mind in signing the bill. I said to myself, here this is not a constitutional question, it is a political question. . . . I will not trouble myself further about the constitutional part, so I determined to sign the bill, and I'm satisfied with the conclusion."

Some details remained to be settled before the state could come into being. One was the question of emancipation of the relatively few slaves.

Eventually a constitutional convention decided on gradual emancipation and the issue was put to a vote of the people on March 26. The tally was 28,321 for emancipation and 572 against.

On April 20 Lincoln proclaimed that 60 days later West Virginia would become a state.

A bipartisan slate of officers was elected without opposition, although no returns were received from 15 southeastern counties.

Inauguration of the new officers was held June 20 at Linsly Institute in Wheeling, the temporary capital.

Arthur I. Boreman, the new governor spoke.

"And now, today," he said, after many long and weary years of insult and injustice, culminating on the part of the East (eastern Virginia) in an attempt to destroy the government, we have the proud satisfaction of proclaiming to those around us that we are a separate state in the Union."

"Our state is the child of the rebellion . . ."

So was added the 35th star in the American flag.

Scott Urges No Split In GOP Ranks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen. Hugh Scott said Friday night the way for Republicans to lose the 1964 presidential election is to "beat each other to bits now" in a conservative-versus-liberal row.

In a speech prepared for a national convention of Young Republicans which has demonstrated marked approval for the views of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Scott said "misplaced zeal and unduly violent clashes of opinion" could cripple the party and lose the next election.

Scott, a Pennsylvanian and a former national chairman who is regarded as a moderate, called on his listeners to support the party's choice of presidential and vice-presidential candidates by 1964 "whoever they may be."

"I am for a Republican victory next year," he said. "You are for a Republican victory next year. But to beat each other to bits now is a sure way to let our opposition beat us once more at the polls. Let us leave lunacy to those who would ride our money to the moon."

"With misplaced zeal and unduly violent clashes of opinion, we can cripple ourselves grievously, lose sight of our goal of a government good and wise and responsible, and lose the next election."

"Let us never forget who our real opponents are—the Democratic administration, whose fuddle, fizzle and failure have disillusioned many thoughtful Democrats as well," Scott continued.

"Let us find our way to our selected leaders with tolerance of our own differences of opinion and emphasis on those things on which we all agree. We all agree that the great question is not whether or not we are going to turn the clock back, but how we can prevent it from being rewound every hour."

Scott said Republicans agree "that though the federal government cannot stop spending, we can stop spending unwisely and we should stop spending so much to so little purpose."

"We all agree that though the United States cannot withdraw from the world, neither can it draw the world to us by trying to buy it country by country," he said.

How successful the Republicans are in 1964, Scott said, will depend on "how responsibly we act between now and the day our leaders are chosen."

"It will help us not at all to jobble forth, ridden with schisms and wounded head to toe by our own brothers in arms," he added.

FAIR ENOUGH

As the V Corps of the Union Army of the Potomac passed through the village of Liberty, Md., on its way toward Gettysburg, Pa., a farmer drove in with his loaded wagon covered with tablecloths.

What happened there is told by Charles Carleton Coffin, a war correspondent of the Boston Journal.

"What have you got to sell, old fellow? Bread, eh?" asked a soldier, raising a corner of the cloth.

"What do you ask for a loaf?"

"I haven't any to sell," said the farmer.

"What are you here for?"

The farmer made no reply.

"Won't you sell me a hunk of your gingerbread?" the soldier persisted.

"No."

"Well, you are a mean old cuss. It would be serving you right to tip you out of your bread cart."

With that the farmer removed the cloth and said:

"I didn't bring my bread here to sell. My wife and daughter set up all night to bake it for you, and you are welcome to all I've got, and wish I had ten times as much. Help yourselves, boys."

They did and gave three cheers for the farmer.

OTHER BATCH — SOLDIERS ATE A LOT OF BREAD, ESPECIALLY THE LIGHT VARIETY. THEY WERE USED TO HARDTACK.

As she leaned over the dough through a bullet pierced the kitchen door and on through Jennie's heart.

Union soldiers fighting nearby herded the rest of the family into the cellar and wrapped Jennie's body in a quilt, one she had made when she was five years old.

Jennie's mother left the cellar to finish the bread so the soldiers might have another meal.

They buried Jennie in the evening of July 4 still wrapped in her own quilt.

But before the earth was shoveled into the grave one of the Union soldiers who helped to bury her removed a picture of her fiancé, Cpl. Johnston H. Skelly, from a pocket in her dress.

She never knew he had been wounded at Winchester, Va., on June 5. And he never knew she was killed, for he died July 2.

Jennie was the only recorded civilian battle death at Gettysburg.

NOT BACKWARD

The Chicago Tribune of Feb. 7, 1863 noted that "the little State of Rhode Island was the first to officially accept the land donation under the Agricultural College Act, and she has located and received scrip for 100,000 acres of land in Kansas, which is nearly one-half as large as the cultivated land in the gallant little state."

CRITICAL

The Buffalo, N. Y., Courier printed this paragraph on Feb. 28, 1863: "At various places the rebels have had blocks of wood painted to resemble cannon, and we, not to be behind them in strategy, have quite often had blockheads dressed up and titled to resemble generals."

IN BUSINESS

John Stephens of Co. I, 1st Georgia regiment was arrested in Richmond, Va., in Feb. of 1863 for selling bogus discharges to Confederate soldiers for $5 each, the Richmond Dispatch reported.

RECIPE

A Southern newspaper gave this recipe for making blacking, a commodity that was scarce due to the Federal blockade: "To a teacup of molasses stir in lamp-black until it is black, then add the whites of two eggs, well beaten and to this add a pint of vinegar or whiskey and put it in a bottle for use — shake it before using."

Milton P. Pierce was advertising in the Buffalo, N. Y. Courier in 1863 that he had a few places left in his sharpshooter outfit. "It has no night duty to perform," he said, and "has better music than any company in service."

DURABLE JACK

John Burns was 72 years old when the battle of Gettysburg occurred.

He was a shoemaker in Gettysburg and a veteran of the War of 1812. When the Confederates invaded his town he took up his old musket and went to another war, this one in his backyard.

He attached himself first to the 150th Pennsylvania and later to the Iron Brigade and fought the first day of the battle. He was wounded four times and lay on the field all night.

The next morning he was carried to his home and put to bed. There he sustained his fifth wound from a stray bullet which came in through a window and creased his chest.

Burns recovered and made shoes for nine more years before he died.

NO POPCORN?

Fashionable New Orleans women originated a new fad in 1863, according to the New York Republican Advocate. "It has become fashionable this season to eat pickled pigs' feet in the theater. In fact, some ladies lay in a supply of these articles each evening, known in the palmy days of New Orleans life as Cincinnati oysters, and fill up the time between the acts by picking these delicate bones while the grease runs down the sides of their pretty mouths lusciously."

SHE ALSO SERVED

Virginia Wade — her family called her Jennie — was kneading dough in the kitchen of her sister, Mrs. Mary McClellan, on Baltimore street in Gettysburg, Pa., during the third day of the battle.

The day before she had baked a big batch of bread for the Union soldiers who were fighting the Confederates at Baltimore street.

This day she was starting an-

CHAMBER PREXY SAYS

Handshaking May Bring Sore Mitts

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Young Dick Headlee displayed a bruised and calloused right hand Friday.

"That comes from shaking 8,000 hands four times," explained the salesman of computing equipment and new president of the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"But, it's worth it."

A man of medium build, Headlee, 33, appeared fresh and relaxed after the five-day national convention and electioneering that brought him the Jaycees' highest office five and a half years after he joined the organization.

He is getting a leave from his business—Burroughs Corp.—to set up quarters in Tulsa, Okla., with the Jaycees.

Headlee doesn't expect to travel too extensively.

"The main thing is to be of service to one-quarter million members as effectively as possible," he said.

"I think we have failed to meet our responsibilities to the Junior Chamber International," he said.

"We need $250,000 a year. This is more like a CARE package. There are 80 countries looking to us for leadership."

Headlee said he wanted to establish an outstanding young educator program to recognize secondary teachers between 21-35, the Jaycee age, through not necessarily Jaycee members.

No one is doing anything, he said, to recognize this group. His proposal, he added, "should draw more people to the field and assure us our children and their children will have adequate education."

Asked about a civil rights program, Headlee said proposals from local chapters would be referred to the national board

DATA IS VIEWED

Korth Says TFX Better Than Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Navy Secretary Fred Korth said Friday a review of technical data shows the General Dynamics Corp.'s winning design for the TFX fighter plane is even superior to performance estimates submitted when the controversial contract was awarded in November.

The losing Boeing Co. plans, Korth said, involved "greater development risk."

Korth told Senate investigators General Dynamics promised the Navy a faster, less complex, more speedily deliverable and less costly plane. He said he was "more than ever convinced" that his recommendation on behalf of General Dynamics was sound.

Korth told Senate permanent investigations subcommittee members that when they "get all the facts, they will reach the same conclusion."

In his first appearance at the TFX contract hearings, Korth defended the General Dynamics design that civilian Pentagon executives chose over Boeing's. The Boeing design was favored by Pentagon military chiefs.

The Navy secretary said he was convinced after re-examining all the data that the right firm was chosen by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara for the $6.5 billion contract to produce 1,700 changeable-wing supersonic planes for use by the Navy and Air Force.

Korth said in a statement that the General Dynamics design surpassed Boeing's in the Navy version by 320 miles per hour at high altitudes and by 150 m.p.h. at sea level.

In addition, he said, the General Dynamics plane was twice as maneuverable at high speeds and altitudes. It could loiter or hover at combat defense stations 25 per cent longer, he added, and uses internal fuel tanks only.

Korth was called as the subcommittee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., began summoning top echelon Pentagon officials for the final phase of the inquiry.

McNamara was expected to be the final witness in the closed hearings that began in February. Air Force secretary Eugene Zuckert was to appear next, after Korth, but no date has been set.

McNamara told the subcommittee earlier that the two-service plane would save a billion dollars or more by avoiding costly duplication.

WIN PHOTO PRIZES

Creative Need Cited For Contest

Creativity is an important asset in the Scenics and "Table-Tops" category of the World and News-Star photo contest which starts Sunday.

It's a category that appeals to the imagination and artistry of amateur photographers, giving them a wide range in composition, lighting, and other techniques.

The contest, which closes Aug. 18, offers a total of $31,000 in national awards with eight top winners receiving $1,000, plus local prizes. Suggestions outlined here are aimed at helping you to spot pictures for the Scenics and "Table - Tops" classification:

Scenics: This includes landscapes, historical areas, street scenes, and even buildings. People may be included if they add to the composition or emphasize a mood. In a scene, look for one that not only shows a pleasant picture but one that expresses a mood or unusual situation. You can help create the special effects by the lighting, the time of day, the angle at which you shoot, and the props you put into the picture. Examples would be pictures taken late in the day when the shadows are long or photos on a foggy or rainy day. All these situations give mood feeling which is so important.

In scenics, you have a friend on your side . . . Mother Nature. The wonders of nature are among the easiest things to photograph, and they usually photograph well.

"Table - Tops": This classification spotlights things, rather than people. These pictures, whether an abstraction or a world in miniature, are judged mainly on interest, lighting arrangement, and artistry.

Photographic "Table - Tops" has become a popular hobby, full of fun and challenges. In photographing scale models, the choice of background is entirely of your own choosing. Large sheets of dull - finish colored paper available from art supply stores are ideal. With such objects as toy soldiers, you can place them on one end of the sheet, while raising the other end about a foot and fastening it there so that it forms both a flat surface and a backdrop.

Great care should be exercised in maintaining the proper scale.

between the objects to be photographed. Another all - important factor is lighting, which must be carefully arranged to simulate the effects you are trying to produce.

Deadline for getting photos in for the first week's judging will be July 4. Winners will be announced in the July 7 Sunday Morning World.

Approximately $300 will be given in local cash prizes, and the grand prize winners chosen at the conclusion of the contest, will be eligible to compete in the 35th Newspaper National Snapshot Awards. Cash prizes totaling $31,000.00 will be offered in the nation contest, which means if you are one of the lucky ones you can win up to $1,000. In addition, you'll get at expense paid trip to Washington for the award.

Each week during the seven-week contest, the Morning World and News-Star will offer awards to winning entries in each of the four black - and - white divisions, which are "Babies and Children, Pets and Animals, Teenagers and Adults, and Scenics and Table-tops." Winners in each division will be presented $5 while second and third place entries will receive $3 and $2 respectively, plus $5 for the grand local winners in each of the four classifications at the end of the local contest. These four winners will be the ones eligible to participate in the national event.

You can turn in as many photos as you like, but make sure they were taken after July 1, 1962. Put your name, address and classification on the back of each photo and send them to the Photo Contest Editor, Morning World and News-Star.

Photo Contest rules are simple to follow and will be available in several places. They will be printed at times in both local newspapers.

Be sure that you obtain the written consent of any recognizable persons appearing in a picture to permit the use of the photo for advertising purposes. The photograph will be ineligible for the national judging unless this is done.

All you have to do to participate in this contest is to be an amateur and own a camera. Any type camera will do.

Just look around you—at work, at play, in the home, or just walking the street. There are countless picture possibilities. Remember the right shot at the right time could earn you a big cash prize.

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK provided the backdrop for this fine snapshot which won a local Grand Prize for a husband and wife team from Woodland Hills, California. Late afternoon daylight and an exposure setting of f/5.6 at 1/100 produced this realistic view of a statuesque deer. Many pictures were taken, as is often necessary with animal photos, but this one with highlighted antlers was the most outstanding.

IFK DEFENSE PLEDGE

Solons Strike Back At Gratuitous Slur

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators of both parties hit back in sharp words Friday at a spokesman for French President Charles de Gaulle who questioned the durability of President Kennedy's pledge to defend Western Europe.

"A gratuitous slur," Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic leader, told his colleagues. He suggested it would be helpful if De Gaulle would join Kennedy in "the high purpose" of achieving unity rather than disunity.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., in effect adopting the language, said Mansfield was "absolutely right."

At the same time the State Department threw back at the Frenchman, Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte, the words in which Kennedy, speaking in West Germany, coupled his pledge with strong criticism of De Gaulle's go-it-alone policy for Europe.

Asked about Peyrefitte's statement, State Department press officer Richard I. Phillips said:

"The position of the United States on this matter has been stated emphatically and clearly by the President, and I think his remarks speak for themselves."

Mansfield called the French official's remarks "a distinct disappointment" and "a gratuitous slur which I cannot believe represents the considered sentiment of the people of France."

Javits in giving his backing cited the commitment of the most recent Republican administration, that of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, to the defense of Europe as evidence of this country's continuing policy of defending the cause of freedom.

Javits declared that Democrats and Republicans alike back the Kennedy pledge.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., assistant Democratic leader, said the French spokesman would "do well to retract the words."

Board Okays Spending For Final Session

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Board of Liquidation of State Debt approved spending of $162,220 Friday in the final session for the fiscal year which ends Monday.

The board had $246,000 left of the $1 million appropriated for the year and quit with an unspent balance of about $84,000.

All allocations of the board, headed by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, are subject to a mail poll of legislators.

In a separate meeting of the State Bond and Building Commission, whose members are the same, the apparent low bid of Buquet and LeBlanc, Baton Rouge, for repairs to the State School for the Deaf were accepted.

The state fire marshal had complained some facilities, including stairwells, were unsafe. W. D. Atkins, bond and building commission director, said the repairs would solve the fire marshal's complaints. With architects' fees and other expenses, $75,000 in spending will be necessary.

Liquidation board spending projects approved were:

State Department of Institutions, $60,000 for repairs to the sugar mill at the state penitentiary, where a 3,280-acre cane crop is growing.

Legislative budget committee, $1,000 to catch up on unpaid bills. Retired Judges' widows, up to $5,000 as needed.

State Department of Education, $30,000 to cover increased expenses of printing, postage and insurance.

T. H. Harris Vocational-Technical School, Opelousas, $2,500 for roof repairs.

State Archives and Records Commission, $45,000 to match federal funds for completion of microfilming vital state records for eventual underground storage.

Mississippi River Parkway Commission, $1,000.

State contribution to additional service credit for retirement funds of Rep. D. Elmore Bencel, St. John the Baptist Parish, $746. Civil District Court for Orleans Parish, $2,900 to make up budget deficiency in commissioner's salary.

Jefferson Parish Trade School, $7,574 to move carpentry shop from Southwest Louisiana Vocational-Technical School at Crowley to Jefferson School.

Liquefied Petroleum Gas Commission, $6,500 to add one inspector.

The liquidation board took under advisement a Department of Agriculture request for $17,000 for marketing service facilities, and another $6,638 for a new machine to mail the Weekly Market Bulletin.

MR. AND MRS. Robert C. Reidy and their 10-year-old son, Mark, were shot to death Thursday night in their home in New London, Conn. Police said Nicholas Ukraine, 26, killed them and then waited for officers to come. An officer said Ukraine, who lived next door, "claims he was being harassed by them" but couldn't explain. Reidy, 45, was a mail carrier. His wife, Mary, was 43. (AP Wirephoto)

IRK SPEAKS TO PARLIAMENT

Red-Ruled People Urged To Follow Irish Example

DUBLIN (UPI)—President Kennedy, in an unprecedented speech to a joint session of Ireland's parliament, today urged the Communist-ruled peoples behind the Iron Curtain to follow the Irish example and never give up the fight for freedom.

The President spoke following a tumultuous visit to Ireland's "rebel city" of Cork, where highly enthusiastic crowds pinned Kennedy against a wall and once shoved so hard that the U.S. Chief Executive was knocked down in his car.

Kennedy was not injured in the crush, however, and told harried security guards to go easy on the crowd because "these are my people."

The President appeared before the Dail (parliament) shortly after Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev arrived in East Berlin and accused Kennedy of playing politics with the German issue.

CROWDS SMALL

Khrushchev had hoped to give East German Communist leaders a lift to counter President Kennedy's success in West Berlin 48 hours ago. But he drew only sparse crowds and apathy compared with the roaring welcome given by 1½ million persons to Kennedy on the Western side of the wall.

"Those who suffer beyond that wall of shame I saw on Wednesday in Berlin must not despair of the future," said the prepared text of Kennedy's speech to parliament. "Let them instead remember the constancy, the faith, the endurance and the ultimate success of the Irish."

The phrase, "wall of shame," appeared in the President's prepared text but in giving his address, he dropped the words, "of shame."

Kennedy said Ireland, although it takes no sides in the cold war, "is not neutral between liberty and tyranny and I know it never will be."

The President said "the central issue of freedom . . . is between those who believe in self-determination and those in the East who would impose on others a harsh and repressive Communist system; and here, your nation wisely rejects the role of go-between."

Earlier, during his visit to Cork, Kennedy warned that unity of the free world is vital to prevent a war which "could annihilate the human race in a few hours."

The President received a standing ovation from the Irish lawmakers after his history making address that was the first ever made by a foreign dignitary to a joint session of parliament.

HONORARY DEGREES

Immediately after addressing parliament, Kennedy, wearing the robes of a doctor of laws, went to Dublin Castle's St. Patrick's Hall where he received honorary doctorates from Dublin University and the University of Ireland.

Earlier, Kennedy drove to Dublin's Arbor Hill Cemetery and laid a wreath on the memorial to leaders of the 1916 rebellion.

ONLY SOLDIERS RESPONDED

Cheers Were Few For Khrushchev

BERLIN (AP)—The only cheer Premier Khrushchev got at East Berlin's Schoenefeld Airport Friday came from a well-drilled honor guard of East German soldiers.

About 5,000 spectators who saw Khrushchev arrive at the airport clapped their hands and waved little paper flags. But there was no cheering from them.

They all seemed to forget the lesson given them minutes before Khrushchev landed. An announcer said over the loudspeaker: "Now, when our friend Nikita Khrushchev steps out of his plane, we will all cheer in unison, 'Hip Hip Hurrah!'"

The crowd responded lustily—at the rehearsal. When the time came really to cheer Khrushchev, only the soldiers responded.

All along Khrushchev's 19-mile route through East Berlin, thinly spaced crowds showed a similar lack of spontaneous enthusiasm.

To those who had watched President Kennedy's triumphant tour of West Berlin two days earlier, it was like coming out of a World Series to watch a baseball game in the bush-leagues.

Even the weather made the comparison look bad for Khrushchev. Kennedy had a bright, sunny day for his visit. Khrushchev's arrival was marred by a torrential cloudburst that broke up the last part of his drive through the city and sent tens of thousands to drenched spectators scurrying for cover.

The East German television broadcast of the drive was abruptly cut short and the announcer said "the column of vehicles is now continuing its route at great speed because of the weather."

The roar of 15 million West Berliners welcoming Kennedy had boomed across the Communist wall and deep into East Berlin. Khrushchev's passage was inaudible half a block away.

When Kennedy drove through West Berlin, the crowd stood 50 deep in the streets, and more than 1,000 persons fainted in the crush. For Khrushchev, ropes had been put up to hold back crowds. But along parts of his East Berlin route the ropes hung limp and untouched, and East German police were the only spectators.

For Kennedy, the cheering crowds surged forward in wild enthusiasm and often threatened to break through the police cordons. The Khrushchev crowds were orderly and organized. Tens of thousands of spectators came in closed formation from factories, offices and schools.

A quarter million West Berliners heard Kennedy speak at the West Berlin City Hall, and 200,000 more crowded about nearby loudspeakers.

For Khrushchev some 50,000 turned up at East Berlin City Hall

Premier's Visit Aids Escape Of Three Soldiers

BAD HERSFELD, Germany (UPI)—Three East German soldiers—possibly aided by Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's Berlin visit—rammed their armored car through three barbed wire barricades to West Germany Friday.

The car smashed through the Iron Curtain with no shots being fired by Communist border guards, witnesses reported. West German border police said the soldiers apparently picked the ideal time to escape. The border has been guarded less heavily than usual during the past several days, they said, because some border units may have been dispatched to Berlin to reinforce security precautions for Khrushchev's visit.

The three soldiers drove directly to the mayor's office in the nearby village of Heringen where they received a hearty welcome.

"Thank God, we made it," one of the refugees said as he jumped onto West German soil. They were not identified by name.

AMID SENATE UPROAR

Thurmond Charges Slanted TV News

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., said at a Senate hearing Friday that the consensus of people generally is that the broadcasting networks "are following the NAACP line" in covering the news.

CBS President Frank Stanton was the witness at the time, and said his network's newsmen are directed only "to be as objective as possible."

He was called to testify on pending bills to waive equal time provisions for some political broadcasts—especially by major party presidential candidates. But suddenly he found himself in the

RFK To Sue For Release Of Negroes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department sued Friday for the release of 45 Negroes who have been in jail in Mississippi since June 19 on charges of disturbing the peace.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said the Negroes were arrested and prosecuted on the charges in order to "penalize them for attempting to obtain police protection for their voter registration meetings. They were variously sentenced to four and six months imprisonment."

The government suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Oxford, Miss., under the Civil Rights Acts of 1957 and 1960.

The named defendants are Le-flore County, John J. Frasier Jr., its prosecuting attorney; H. Ed Weber Jr. and Harlow Pittman, county deputy sheriffs, and John Arterbury, director of the county penal farm where the Negroes are held.

The Justice Department said the Negroes were arrested the night of June 18 in Itta Bena, a small town near Greenwood, the county seat.

It said the Negroes had been driven out of a church where they were holding their voting meeting by the release into the church of poisonous fumes which caused at least one injury.

The department gave this further account:

The Negroes—apprehensive about a possible disturbance outside the church—tried unsuccessfully to telephone deputy sheriff Weber, who also is Itta Bena town marshal. Then they decided to walk to Weber's home to appeal for protection.

The Negroes were set upon by a small group of other Negroes who threw bottles and bricks at them. Soon afterward, Weber and Pittman arrived and arrested 57 of those who were attacked.

The next day they were convicted of disturbing the peace by blocking public roads and by throwing bottles and bricks—even though, the Justice Department said, "no evidence was presented that any of them had done so."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 6-29

JOTTINGS IN PENCIL. Federico Fellini, the undisputed genius of the Italian film world, has made one of the great pictures of all time—"8½"—and Joe Levine, most enterprising of the Yankee movie men, unveiled it at his excellent new Festival Theatre. The cinema has taken a giant step forward. Fellini's exciting combination of life and fantasy, with Marcello Mastroianni as the hero of the real and the almost too real sequences, will cause controversy among the anti-intellectuals and delight connoisseurs with its fiercely demanding quality of audience participation. The premiere was among the most glamorous of the season, drawing such stars as Joan Crawford, Myrna Loy, Shelley Winters and Claudette Colbert, and the two top celebrities of the evening, Fellini and Mastroianni. If you are imaginative, sensitive and thoughtful, run — don't walk — to "8½"; it will delight and challenge you.

MICKEY MANTLE'S chum expects a formal announcement soon about his tremendous new business venture. He and pal Vic Jarnal have been burning up the wires between Dallas and New York. They should be holding a press conference in the near future. A famed and fabulous singer is causing great concern among her Inner Circle. They fear her heavy drinking has reached the point where it is injuring her health as well as her career.

Charles Aznavour (the "French Sinatra") and his wife, actress Marie Laforet, are divorcing. It was his third marital venture. The beautiful wife of a Big Man on Broadway may make headlines before the Profumo scandal runs its course. She is Dr. Stephen Ward's girl friend for several years, and those in the know are shuddering to think of what may lie in store for her. It's regrettable, because she's eminently respectable now — and very nice. The Mamie Van Doren-Bo Belinsky breakup, just made official, was predicted in this space weeks ago.

The path of true love isn't running smooth for attractive Mary Sinclair and her fiancé, Larry Fisher. Mary didn't even turn up at a party in their honor the other night, because there had been a tiff earlier in the day. Everyone who's seen Anita O'Day's new act says she's destined to make it "real big" — a la Peggy Lee. The former Gene Krupa band singer, currently on a Scandinavian tour, has suddenly become one of the hottest nightclub attractions in the business. Looks marvelous, too.

Warren Beatty has caught up with Brandy Keene, the beautiful Southern model — which may mean curtains for Richard Beymer.

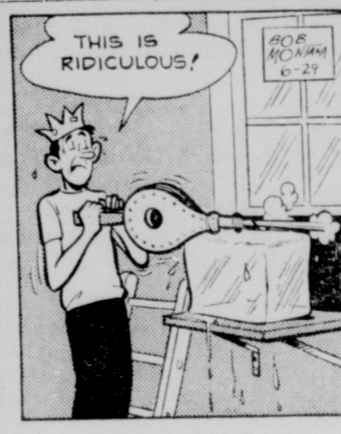

A TV-celeb, reported to have won thousands of dollars during a golf tournament, did — but not on golf. It seems there was a hush-hush game of dice after the golf match and that's when he emerged the big winner.

A CITIZEN who walked along Broadway between 52nd St. and 57th St. the other night is writing a letter to Mayor Wagner with a full report of his stroll. He was approached by seven streetwalkers in the course of five blocks.

Javits Decries 'Lily White'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., denounced Friday what he called snide efforts to depict the Republican party as "lily white."

Javits told the Senate he believes it would involve "a mortal threat to my party and a very serious threat to the country if the Republican party should go lily white."

He said he is going to work to see that it doesn't abandon its 1960 platform stand for congressional action on civil rights legislation.

Without mentioning him specifically, Javits said in obvious reference to Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., it was all very well for a leading potential candidate for his party's presidential nomination to express opposition to some pending civil rights proposals.

But Javits said he is confident more than a majority of the Senate's 33 Republicans will back the program President Kennedy has submitted.

"We all know that cloture hasn't got a prayer without Republican votes and we are going to have to close to get legislation," he said. Goldwater has said he will vote against cloture.

Javits said the GOP members were backing proposals they believe are good for the country and not just Kennedy's program.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Democratic leader, told Javits he wanted "to make it crystal clear that there is no room for partisan bickering and partisan advantage in passing civil rights legislation."

Humphrey said he agreed with Javits that Republican help will be necessary to get approval for any "meaningful measure."

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, the assistant Republican leader, said he is going to do everything he can to see that the 1960 civil rights pledges are carried out.

"We pledged that we would try to eliminate the evil, miserable, contemptible filibuster from the U.S. Senate and that is one thing I have tried to do," he said.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., attacked sections of the administration's civil rights bill that he said would deny students the right to attend public schools in their own neighborhoods and require them to be transported long distances to other schools to prevent racial imbalance.

He told the Senate that just what constitutes racial imbalance in the schools would be left to the uncontrolled ideas of the federal commissioner of education, who would be authorized to use tax funds to train school authorities to deal with the problem.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hazel DeWees, Monroe.

Double Slaying In Mississippi Baffles Police

ROSEDALE, Miss. (AP) — Investigation of the mystery deaths of two young Rosedale men appears heading into a "blind alley," Sheriff Jewell Pace of Bolivar County said.

Officers searched out the last remaining leads Friday in attempting to solve the slaying of Sam Dana Jr., 25, and Richard Cheatham, 18.

"Unless something new turns up, we're pretty much at the end of the line," Sheriff Pace said.

Almost $3,000 reward has been posted for new information in the double killing that occurred June 5 on the edge of a lake just north of town.

Police say they have no suspects.
